Death of A Hero

There was an item on the news wires from Orangeburg, S.C. It said that James Leonard Hanberry, 86, had died in a veterans hospital after a long illness. He was, in a very real sense, one of the nation's major heroes. His voluntary gallantry in 1900 had helped eliminate the scourge of yellow fever. It is no exaggeration to say he made possible saving the lives of hundreds of thousands of persons.

A few years ago we sat talking at a desk in a private room of the law offices of J. D. Bryant at Orangeburg. Hanberry at the time was working as a court bailiff. As we talked one could see Havana, Cuba, of 63 years ago, hot and humid in July, with panic and fear ruling the city where the dread carts went about, their drivers crying in their soft, sad Spanish, "Bring out your dead."

It was "Yellow Jack," so called from the yellow quarantine flag. Walter Reed, the Army doctor, had arrived to see what could be done. Soldiers and civilians daily were dropping with the disease. A headache, fever, the "black vomit," which was a hemorrhage from the stomach mixed with bile, and death save for the pitiful few was the schedule.

Elegant Ladies

Wives of Army officers and the elegant Spanish ladies riding in their rich carriages were bags of asafetida. Frequent scolding was advised. The Army burned the clothing and tents of the dead. But, still the people died.

For 19 years Dr. Carlos Finlay, a Havana physician, had been insisting mosquitoes caused the disease. The medical world had scoffed at him. The popular theory was that "miasmas" caused fever. People, who could, fled to the mountains to escape. Reed and his associates decided to test it. The plan was to capture mosquitoes, let them feed on the body of a patient ill with yellow fever, and then allow the same mosquitoes—across a period of days—to bite well men.

To volunteer was to risk almost sure death.

But when Dr. Reed asked for volunteers, some 20 of them stepped forward. One of them was the man who sat talking in the law office in Orangeburg—James Leonard Hanberry. He was even then the only man living who took both tests—the mosquito and the bed test. Some believed the deadly fever was transmitted by the clothing and bedding in which victims had died. A hut was built and tightly screened. A stove was put in it to provide excessive heat. From the hospitals were brought the filthy, vomit-stained sheets, bedding and sleeping clothes of the recently dead. The volunteers slept in these ghastly, stinking habitations for 21 consecutive nights.

Sleep

"Could you sleep?" I asked James H. berry.

"You know how it is," he said. "A soldier can sleep anywhere."

Not all would take both tests. Hanberry did. He was bitten by a mosquito—captive in a tube—which some days before had fed on the yellow body of a dying victim.

Hanberry took yellow fever.

"In about five days you know," he said. "After that fifth day you either get well or go down the road. My fever was 105. I lost 40 pounds in nine days. They didn't give us anything but water. No food at all."

James Hanberry got well.

"I guess I lived because I was strong and healthy," he said.

He didn't look or act like a hero. A quiet, almost inarticulate man, he had moved to Orangeburg a dozen years before from Denmark, S.C.

He served as a bailiff in the court, but he did one other job. On Sunday mornings he unlocked the gates of the Orangeburg Cemetery and locked them at dark. In it lie men and women who died more than half a century ago of yellow fever.

There are but few examples of moral or physical courage to match those of the men who stepped forward that dreadful day in Havana 63 years ago this coming summer.

U.N. Asks Congo Unit Of 25,000

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld Thursday asked for 25,000 men and $135 million for the U.N. emergency force in the Congo.

The secretary general's requests, to cover operations in 1961, were made in a report to the General Assembly. It will be debated after the assembly resumes its session Tuesday. Hammarskjöld called his financial request "essential and urgent."

The secretary general pointed out that the U.N. organization had borrowed the limit from other funds available to the secretariat.

In another development, the United Nations announced Thursday night that Tunisia has pledged 600 troops to the Congo force for a year's service, in addition to prolonging the tour of service of the 2,700 Tunisian troops already in the Congo.

Hammarskjöld based his figures on the experience gained during 1960. But he warned the costs might be more—or possibly less—according to the development of events in the Congo and the need for a U.N. army there. He made no mention of the refusal of members of the Communist bloc to pay a share of the world organization's costs. The estimated figures also took no account of

Rockefeller, Wife Climb Down Rope, Escape Fire

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Fire broke out Thursday night at the home of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. The governor and his wife escaped by ropes from the second floor of the building.

Flames were reported shooting out of the brick building, located near the downtown section a short distance from the State Capitol.

State police said several persons might be trapped on the top floor of the building.

The governor's valuable art collection also was threatened.

Rockefeller stood on the broad lawn outside the brick building watching firemen fight the two-alarm fire.

He said he feared for the safety of servants in the mansion.

Heavy smoke filled the north side of the building. No fire was visible from the outside.

Two alarms were sounded.

Many Bills May Die With Recess

Apportioning Study To Be Taken Up

By HUNTER JAMES

With only three days left in the 1961 General Assembly session, many controversial bills are near death for this session.

House Speaker George L. Smith II announced Thursday night that the House would work Friday on House measures, and then devote Saturday and Monday to Senate measures.

Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd said a skeleton force will be on hand in the Senate Saturday to receive House bills, but anything which has not passed at least one house by Friday night will be dead. A new bill must be read three times in either chamber before a vote and not more than once on a given day.

REAPPORTIONMENT WAITS

Awaiting Senate action is a bill that would set up a 13-member committee to study reapportionment in the General Assembly. Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd said the measure would be taken up before adjournment.

The bill cleared the House Wednesday by a vote of 118 to 5.

Byrd said the Senate would take action on a House-passed bill that would add two members to the state Court of Appeals. "We'll certainly get to that," he said. "I'm for that."

Action on other controversial measures has been postponed indefinitely.

ENDS IN COMMITTEE

The sheriff's salary bill, which started out in the Senate, came to the end of the road—for this year—when it reached the State of Republic Committee in the House.

Committee Chairman Roy McCracken assigned it to a subcommittee. The Georgia Sheriffs' Association favored the bill and the County Commissioners Association was against it.

Most Georgia sheriffs earn their pay from fees. This bill would allow them to switch over to a salary system but wouldn't require it.

Chances for a repeal or modification of Georgia's school attendance laws also appear to be dead for this session.

The House Education Committee

Though little property damage is expected in the Albany area, several Negro families were evacuated from their homes in the lower southeast corner of the city.

The rising water inundated much of the Radium Springs Golf Course and blocked roads in the himself to vote for or against the Kennedy program.

Vinson said he will wait and see what kind of a bill the committee reports out and then make up his mind what position to take.

"The key to the whole situation is control," Vinson said. "Federal aid to education without control is one thing," the veteran Milledgeville lawmaker said, "and federal aid with control is quite another thing. It all depends on the language in the bill, setting out what controls."

President Kennedy Thursday declared flood-disaster areas in five Georgia congressional districts, making them eligible for direct federal assistance through the Office of Civil Defense.

Federal aid will be available to city and county governments to restore public facilities which were destroyed or damaged by the flood. Gov. Vandiver and the regional office of Civil and Defense Mobilization will administer the program.

And the Red Cross announced Thursday that it was expecting to spend approximately $1 million in helping to restore personal property lost in the floods of the Southeast.

The Red Cross estimated that 1,600 Georgians already have been affected by the floods which surged up in the state's streams a week ago.

The House turned its back on the rebellious legislative leadership Thursday night and adopted the Byrd-Vandiver appropriations bill by a margin of slightly better than two-to-one.

By a vote of 137 to 65, the House approved a bill which calls for $412.4 million worth of state spending next year.

Never-say-die opponents of the appropriations bill talked into the night trying to kill the bill, charging that "pressure" was being applied to members, that tax increases would be required and that legislative independence was dying a slow death.

HAD MARGIN ALL WAY

But the governor and lieutenant governor very clearly had the votes from the beginning of the debate, which was delayed for a couple of hours Thursday afternoon in 11th-hour attempts by the House leaders to gain a compromise.

Gov. Vandiver and Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd made some concessions, but House opponents agreed on the floor they did not amount to a compromise.

"I am grateful," Vandiver said immediately after the vote, "to the members of the House and the Senate who stood solidly with me in my efforts to secure for the people of Georgia the first appropriations bill since 1956."

FOR BUDGET PANEL

Byrd said he favors the concession calling for a study commission to decide who will handle future budgetary measures.

He called "on those who have differed with me, and who have spoken critically of me, now to join me in this effort and accomplish the desired results for the people of Georgia."

Before the vote, House Speaker George L. Smith II stepped from the rostrum to the House floor to say he would not tell the legislators how to vote and add, "You may like the Senate bill. I don't."

The budget battle split between the members, and the House leadership was blamed on "pressure" by Smith, who said some lawmakers told him that the jobs of their sons and brothers or the possibility of roads in their counties were jeopardized unless they supported the bill.

Smith was one of the leaders

'MY CONSCIENCE IS CLEAR' House Speaker George Smith Announces Vote

Rebels Get Cheers, Governor the Votes

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

They dragged in their heavy oratorical artillery in the Georgia House late Thursday and loaded the cannons with everything from "Thanatopsis" to old political laundry.

The result: His majesty's loyal opposition got all the applause. The Governor himself bagged the votes.

For more than four hours 25 speakers, some of whom have never been known to make a speech before, argued the Governor's Senate-passed appropriation bill versus the appropriation bill the House passed eight days ago.

When the air was blue with smoke and redolent with charges of political payola, undue influence and downright coercion, the members who were beginning to droop dispiritedly at their desks were jerked to their feet cheering by three fast and dramatic speeches by the Governor's erstwhile stalwarts turned rebel, the triumvirate of Ray, Twitty and Smith.

And the greatest of these, judging by the two standing ovations accorded him, was Smith—House Speaker George Smith II of Emanuel County.

Shortly before the controversial bill came up for a vote at 7:20 p.m., Smith turned his gavel over to Speaker Pro Tem Robert Scoggin and approached the floor microphone to complete the most dramatic repudiation of a governor by a House Speaker since the days of the Roy Harris-Ellis Arnall split in the early 1940s.

He began on a note of sarcasm, thanking state employees for "laying aside their duties to come up here and visit us," the

Senate Votes Study Of Waste, Overlap

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

The Georgia Senate passed a resolution Thursday which, according to its author, could result in the first reorganization of state government in 30 years.

By a 35-0 vote, the upper house approved the proposal of Sen. Spence Grayson of Savannah to create a 25-member joint legislative committee to study overlapping and waste in state government. The measure now goes to the House.

Sen. Grayson said it was the result of "statements, facts and disclosures" made before the joint appropriations committees during their two-week study of the appropriations bill.

"We have not had any reorganization of our state government in the last 30 years," Sen. Grayson commented. He suggested that the government has become an "unwieldy, complex structure."

Aid for Job-Hit Sections Altered by Senate Panel

By JOHN D. MORRIS

WASHINGTON — A slightly revised version of the Kennedy administration's depressed-area bill emerged Thursday from a Senate Banking and Currency subcommittee.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., calls for $300 million in loan funds and $24 million in other federal outlays to stimulate redevelopment of areas of chronic unemployment. It was moved along to the full committee with one dissenting vote by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah.

In another development, the House Education and Labor Committee voted to raise the minimum wage for workers now covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act from $1 to $1.15 an hour this year and to $1.25 next year.

The vote was 15 to 11 for approval of that part of a bill reported Tuesday by a subcommittee.

Kennedy had proposed that the increase be put into effect in three steps—to $1.15 this year, $1.20 next year and $1.25 the following year.

The new buildings will be started in the next 10 months, instead of the next 18 months as originally planned.

The Douglas bill, as approved Thursday, follows administration recommendations in all major respects except two.

INDEPENDENT AGENCY
It would authorize expenditures of $6,000,000 instead of $1,500,000 for retraining unemployed workers.

Aside from the loan funds and retraining provisions, the measure calls for $10 million in grants for public facilities such as water and sewer systems and $4,500,000 for technical assistance to depressed areas.

MINIMUM WAGE
Two $100 million funds would be established to make loans to governmental or private applicants for land purchases and construction of plants and other facilities in urban and rural areas. A third $100 million fund would be for

Girl's Killer Is Indicted, Faces Chair

NEW YORK (UPI)—The confessed sex-slayer of 4-year-old Edith (Googie) Kiecorius was indicted on a charge of first degree murder Thursday as the little girl was being buried.

Moving with great speed, a grand jury returned the indictment and handed it up to General Sessions Judge Thomas Dickens.

A first degree murder conviction in New York State brings a mandatory sentence of death in the electric chair.

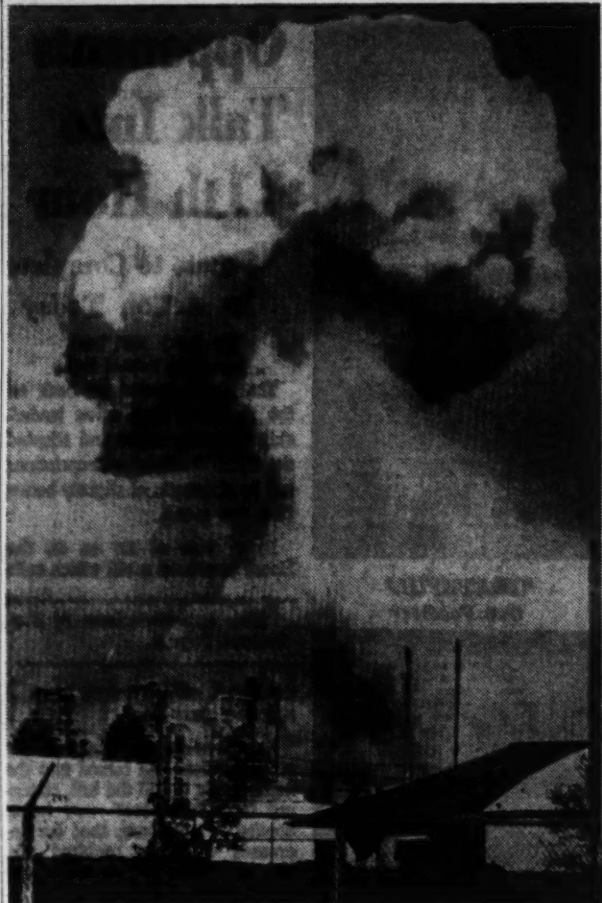

Meanwhile, authorities prepared to question the child's murderer, Fred Thompson, 59, a drunken drifter, about the death of a 3-year-old girl in New England 37 years ago.

The body of 45-pound Edith, in a white lace dress, was placed in a closed casket in a coffin for a Mass of the Angels in St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church and burial in St. Charles Cemetery.

Edith's widowed mother, Mrs. Edith Kiecorius, knelt with her hands clasped to her mouth during most of the Mass. Beside her was her other child, Albin, 10.

About 1,000 persons crowded into the 900-seat church for the Mass. Police guarded the church and the funeral home.

A suicide guard was placed outside Thompson's cell.

2 Killed, 27 Hurt In Chemical Blast

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Earth-shaking blasts tore through two five-story chemical units at the Ethyl Corp. plant Thursday, apparently killing two workers and injuring 27.

Four explosions, rattling windows in the 34-story state Capitol building less than two miles south, rained bricks in the plant area. Workers fled for their lives.

MUSHROOM CLOUD
A giant, mushroom cloud puffed upwards some 3,000 feet, looking like an atomic blast column.

Breezes pushed the cloudy, chemical fumes across the Mississippi River, away from a residential section.

There were early reports a chlorine gas unit might be involved. School officials hurriedly evacuated a nearby public elementary school. But plant spokesmen gave assurances the gas unit was away from the blast area and the pupils returned to classes.

FLAMES CONQUERED
Emergency crews conquered massive flames that engulfed the explosion area.

The plant, employing 2,800 persons in the hub of the vast petrochemical industrial complex here, said two men, Charles R. John-

Football's Golden Girl Dies at 21

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Adele Darling Avery, 21, the most famous of Purdue University's Golden Girl baton twirlers, died Thursday afternoon of a massive hemorrhage on the brain.

She had never regained consciousness since she was stricken Tuesday noon in her apartment in the court for married students.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Darling, Manteca, Calif., were with her when she died in St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

The curvaceous blonde got her start as a twirler with her father's high school marching band in Manteca. She stirred up a furore in 1958 over the hula dances she performed in gold sequins at football halftime shows.

She was replaced as Golden Girl after her marriage last November to Vell Avery III, Binghamton, N.Y., a Purdue science junior. She dropped out of her home economics studies this winter.

She had made solo appearances in the Blue Grass Bowl in Louisville, Ky., the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala., and at the Indiana State Fair.

U.S. Eases Atom Ban Terms

By JOHN W. FINNEY
Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.

WASHINGTON — The Kennedy administration, in an attempt to reach an atomic test ban agreement with the Soviet Union, is preparing to make a concession on the crucial issue of on-site inspections.

This concession, reducing the number of annual inspections demanded inside the Soviet Union, was described by State department officials as a key feature in the new set of proposals which the Kennedy administration will present for a test ban treaty.

Administration officials met Thursday to put the finishing touches on the position the United States will take when the test ban talks resume in Geneva on March 21.

In general outline, according to State department officials, the proposals to be advanced by the Kennedy administration will not differ in substantial degree from the position taken by the Eisenhower administration.

Thus, it was said, the Kennedy administration will resume the negotiations within the framework of the proposal put forth a year ago by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan for a phased approach to a test ban.

This approach called for a ban with agreed inspection and detection facilities on all tests above the surface and on underground tests equal in force to 19,000 tons of TNT or greater.

There would be a voluntary moratorium on underground tests below this 19-kiloton threshold while seismic research was conducted on methods for improving detection of such small explosions.

Jail Evicts Mother, 26, And Baby

CLOVIS, N.M. (UPI)—Mrs. Betty Raines, 26, and her 10-month-old son were evicted from county jail Thursday.

She was in for 15 days because she said she couldn't afford to pay a $15 traffic fine and because she refused to accept offers to have it paid for her.

Because her baby still is nursing, the baby went to jail with her.

News of the situation prompted 70 telephone calls and telegrams of protest to law enforcement officials here. Some included money orders to pay the fine.

Justice of the Peace Cleta Williams, who imposed the fine, ordered the acceptance of $15 plus $7 offered by a Clovis motel and released Mrs. Raines.

GOP Hits 'Politics' in Judgeships

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans raised a cry of "court-house politics" Thursday as Democratic leaders pressed for Senate passage of a bill to create 69 new federal judgeships, including two in Georgia.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the GOP floor leader, waged what looked like a losing fight to delay action.

"We want the judges," Dirksen said, "but we believe we are entitled to something more than one hour of hearings."

Dirksen wanted to send the bill back to the Senate Judiciary Committee for further hearings. He said Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy should be called before the committee and asked whether the new appointments would be divided equally between the parties, as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower offered to do last year.

Kennedy declined to make any such commitment when he testified Wednesday on a companion bill before the House Judiciary Committee. His brother, President Kennedy, would appoint the new judges.

DIRKSEN COMMENTS

As Senate debate got under way with an agreement that no final vote would be taken before Friday, Dirksen issued a statement. He said the bill "is indeed in keeping with the New Frontier spirit where courthouse politics was a highly cultivated art and where judgeships were considered among the most desirable political plums of all."

"It shall never be said," he added, "that the New Frontier is not maintaining the tradition of Andrew Jackson when political patronage reached its highest state of unrefined refinement."

Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, the House Republican leader, joined Dirksen in accusing the Democrats of playing politics with the judgeship bill.

PASSAGE TODAY?

At a joint news conference with Dirksen, Halleck noted that Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., of the House Judiciary Committee had said the Democrats gambled on a change in administrations when they refused to pass a judgeship bill for Eisenhower.

"This gamble has been at the cost of millions of dollars to American litigants and justice," Halleck said.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he hoped for Senate passage of the bill Friday.

Auto-Inflicted Cuts Won't Mar John Payne's Camera Profile

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doctors Thursday assured movie and television star John Payne that deep face and scalp cuts he received when struck by an automobile Wednesday night will not scar his handsome profile.

The 48-year-old actor, listed earlier Thursday as in "critical" condition, was later reported in "satisfactory" condition at Roosevelt Hospital and "resting well."

Payne's wife, Sandra, was en route to New York from their home in Santa Monica, Calif.

When the car hit the actor on a midtown Manhattan street, Payne was flung into the air and his head crashed into the windshield, inflicting numerous scalp and face cuts. He also received fractures of the lower left leg.

His first words at the hospital were: "How's my face? Is it badly cut?"

Payne was crossing Madison Avenue about a block from his hotel, in rain Wednesday night when he was struck by the car driven by Bernard T. Seiz, 21, of New York, a financial research analyst. Seiz, who told police he did not see Payne in time to stop, was not held.

Wisdom Prevails In the End

Gov. Vandiver bound up many of the injuries of the budget fight by his proposal to launch the necessary study to revise Georgia budget procedures.

A revision is what his opponents in the House have been fighting for. The governor properly declined to bow to hasty and unstudied changes in the present heat of political combat. The House leaders properly refused to be content with the present budget system.

Wisdom finally prevailed. Pledging not only to get himself a budget officer, the governor advocated study of systems in other states and a report to the legislature for action. This is the way to go about a prudent revision.

The governor deserves praise for admitting the need and taking the lead in meeting it. The House leaders have done the state a service by illuminating the need and insisting that it be met.

Peace Officers Could Learn From Teachers

Whatever amount teachers finally get in salary raises out of the current budget squabble, it appears certain that the present measly retirement pay will be more than doubled. A bill which would increase the present $100 to $233, at no additional cost to the state, passed the House without dissent.

The hike will be made possible by greater returns than anticipated on investments of pension funds on hand, from an additional one-cent contribution from teachers and from contributions from county boards. It will alleviate the problem of security, a major reason so many are leaving the profession.

Peace officers who are seeking more pension funds at public expense should take note: If they would abandon the fee system for salaries, they, too, could move toward an actuarially sound pension plan without further gouging of municipal and county governments.

Meanwhile, the first sincere effort to place sheriffs on a salary basis is dying in the legislature. The bill to make this possible, already amended to make it ineffectual, again has been bottled up. Action thus will be delayed by at least a year and perhaps more.

Surely Rep. Newton Won't Persist in This

Rep. David Newton of Colquitt County is one of the fairest and soundest men in the House. That is why we are especially disappointed to see him sponsor a resolution aimed at barring the press from covering some desegregation news. Does he wish to blind the people to events occurring on their campuses? Certainly Rep. Newton does not, and we have so much faith in his judgment we cannot believe he will persist, after reflection, in folly.

Seven Women Walking In Rain Are So Right

Trudging in the rain on sidewalks around the Capitol the other morning were a handful of women carrying placards for prison reforms, rehabilitation programs and justice tempered with mercy.

Their ranks were thin. The general public doesn't give much of a hoot what happens to a person once he is convicted. The Constitution does not advocate coddling of prisoners. But we do insist that penal reforms and an adequate rehabilitation program are long overdue.

As for justice in the courts, what kind of "justice" is it when persons jointly involved in a single crime are given such contrasting sentences as 2 to 5 years for one man and 15 to 20 years for his fellow criminal?

There will continue to be such disparities until Georgia law is changed so that defendants are allowed to testify under oath and be subject to cross-examination and until judges, with the past record of the accused before them, are empowered to impose sentence after guilt is established by juries.

The public should demand these reforms in our penal systems and courts. The seven women walking in the rain recognized needs that the more calloused and sophisticated thus far have brushed aside.

Delay on Pension Bill Will Be Inexcusable

There's still time for the Fulton County delegation to pass the proposed pension bill for future employees of the city and county at this session. To fail to do so will be a disservice to the people and to the respective governments concerned.

The plan, which was carefully prepared and which has been hanging fire for many months, should not become the victim of the political motives of any member of the delegation. It is needed and needed now. Failure to act on it will not be overlooked by the voters.

The delegation deserves commendation for adopting the emeritus salary bill for the mayor and for the neighborhood registration bill. Final action still is awaited on the emeritus bill for department heads. Presumably the delegation has agreed on it and will speed it through as they should.

There seems no reasonable excuse, however, for not passing the pension bill.

Flood Damage Is Proof West Point Needs Dam

Many areas of Georgia have reason to be thankful for dams which prevented or lessened peril from floods in recent days.

However, the mighty Chattahoochee is far from being harnessed.

For years efforts have been made to convince the federal government of the need for a dam near West Point to provide flood control, power and navigation facilities.

A government study has been under way since 1958. The recent flood, one of many that have plagued the Chattahoochee Valley, should be a powerful convincer toward the necessity of building such a dam.

Leave Master's Hearing Free of Other Obligation

The House-passed bill regarding condemnation proceedings for highways requires a property owner to seek a court trial in order to get a special master's hearing on the value of his property.

Presently a property owner can get that hearing without that obligation.

We think this protection should be retained. We think it can be retained without forcing the highway department to sacrifice anything in the way of speed.

The way to do it is to give the property owner the right to ask for a master's hearing (after the department has filed its declaration of taking) without the requirement that it be part of an appeal for a jury trial.

Why Don't Children In Atlanta Rate, Too?

It is encouraging to note that 68 communities in Georgia think enough of their children's teeth to provide fluoridated water supplies.

It is shameful that Atlanta does not think that much of its children.

U.S. Not Built by Men Who Were Afraid

Francis Walter of Easton, Pa., is a kindly, gentle-looking, white-haired gentleman with asthma. He is afraid of what the Communist conspiracy might do to America. As chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, he fights the conspiracy.

But in fighting it, he has put the First Amendment of the Constitution in real jeopardy. If dissenting justices on the Supreme Court are correct, he has even ruled out public criticism of him and his committee. Such criticism, apparently, is un-American.

Criticism of anything is decidedly American. At least it used to be. I have a very selfish reason for being concerned. I'm an editorial writer. I hate to see anybody or anything ruled out of bounds for criticism. After all, you can only write so many "this is good" editorials.

There are people who have an even more personal interest in this business. Young people are pretty idealistic. They see things head on and they ask questions. What is a high-school teacher going to do if one of his students should ask him what's what with the HUAC? What if he's asked flatly: Do we have freedom of speech and association or don't we? He'd better be careful. His answer might be un-American. He might get a call from Rep. Walter.

This could lead, Justice Hugo Black says, to "government by intimidation." I doubt that that's what Rep. Walter wants. What could be more un-American? Could we survive—as America—if we stopped thinking, stopped questioning?

"Some people are afraid that this country cannot survive unless Congress has the power to set aside the freedoms of the First Amendment at will," Justice Black says. Then he adds:

"This country was not built by men who were afraid and it cannot be preserved by such men." It's one thing to be on guard against communism. It's another to be panicked by it.

Budget Football A Costly Game

The legislative scrimmage over the budget resembled a football game. Both teams changed goals at the half. Gov. Vandiver kicked off as started out demanding more pay for teachers and ended up defending the most rigid economies.

This was a spectator sport for the taxpayer. But he will find himself participating sooner than he likes to think. This budget spends more than the state will take in—$420 million going out in the second year and an estimated $386 million coming in. This means the state's savings will evaporate to meet the bills. And after the savings are gone, somebody is going to put the arm on the taxpayer or the bills obviously can't be met.

Otherwise, who lost? Gov. Vandiver cashed in his reputation as an opponent of deficit spending. Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd joined him as a big spender. Sen. Willis Conger of Bainbridge said somebody told him Marvin Griffin was for the Vandiver-Byrd bill, too. On the other hand, Phil Campbell was frequently identified with the House bunch that fought the governor, though Campbell managed to come out of the teacher-pay pileup clutching nearly a million dollars extra on the side for his Agriculture department. Even so, Campbell probably would rather have caught the cholera himself than see his rival Byrd, whom he cordially dislikes, win those legislative votes.

What happened? Jack Ray, whose many friends include Campbell, was a little reckless in trying to gallop off with too many of the money powers of the governor—especially the future governor, whoever that may be—and deliver them to 25 politicians in the House. This provoked the present governor into an unseemly gesture toward the House. The House, hurt deeply, kicked the governor in the pants with a vote of such towering non-confidence that Vandiver had to go into his sleeve for an ace or go back to Lavonia wearing a barrel. That was the point where the teams changed goals.

With Byrd as his cheerleader, Vandiver came up with a bigger pay offer to the teachers and bus drivers than the House had come up with in its increase of what Vandiver had first come up with, and that left the original pro-teacher raise agitators in the House looking like anti-teacher raise obstructionists.

This spot did not prove tenable for the former heroes in the House.

All the taxpayer has to do now is brace himself for the new taxes he will one day be implored to pay for this exercise in politics, passions and pressures. He can get at least part of his money's worth, however, if he will hold tight to one truth that Ray and his House squad unearthed: their spunky show of legislative independence exposed the need for a new and long-range system of making and controlling the state budget—a carefully framed system that will stop such wasteful shoving as Georgians saw this year—a system that ought to be put together next year, election year, under the people's supervision.

And Gov. Vandiver, in the happiest part of the ending, agreed yesterday to start the wheels turning himself to revise the budget system.

Professors Make A Perfect Score

WASHINGTON—One hardy stereotype—the cliché that "the wild-eyed professors" would surely be the first to embarrass President Kennedy—is dead before the administration is two months in office. It just has not been so. Another equally hardy stereotype was that, anyhow, the President would be saved from professional folly by the professional politicians in his shop.

The pros on the whole have done well. But there is one glaring exception—though this correspondent, as a pro-political writer who has held the liveliest suspicion of academics in public life, regrets he must report it.

The one official of the Kennedy administration who has thus far plainly embarrassed it is a professional politician, former Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan. Williams' behavior in his current African tour, as assistant secretary of state for African affairs, has been almost incredibly irresponsible.

But for him the professionals' side would have, to this point, a perfect score in responsible service.

It is just such a perfect score, however surprising this may seem, that "the wild-eyed professors" have thus far run up. They have turned out to be not wild-eyed, after all.

Indeed, one begins to suspect that though they were brought here primarily as "idea men" the ideas do not stop with glittering visions. They are actually pretty practical fellows not given to the either-or approach. And though mostly political liberals they are, in my judgment, true liberals—not so doctrinaire by half as one might have feared.

Well representative of them is Prof. Walt Rostow, late of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and he will illustrate the point. As a White House adviser, Rostow has much on his plate—including the Congo, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the foreign aid program. But when you talk to him you find no knee-jerk professional "liberalism," no eager, dogmatic savor of this world by tomorrow morning at 10:32.

You find a man who cheerfully accepts two epigrams. One is that when you are not in power you can afford much grand rhetoric, but when you are in power you must cut your talk to fit the coat of reality. The other is that while reformers can do many things they can't do them all at once, and shouldn't.

Court's Conflict Centers on Panel

WASHINGTON—The fundamental conflict in the Supreme Court over whether the power of Congress to investigate an international Communist conspiracy in the United States is misused, in violation of the Constitution, continues to center on the methods of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Neither the five justices who on Monday upheld the committee's procedures in the Wilkinson and Braden cases, nor the four justices who on the same record found these procedures a violation of the free speech guarantees of the First Amendment, questioned the full authority of Congress to order the investigation; or to give to the committee the instructions it did of what to investigate.

Therefore, despite the gloomy prophecy of the minority that the decisions expose any critic of the House committee to being publicly "held up as a subversive or a traitor," etc., the Supreme Court majority of one created no such inevitable result. It merely found that in this instance the information required of the witnesses by the committee was pertinent to a proper legislative and constitutional purpose, that this was explicitly explained to them in terms of normal comprehension and that their refusal to answer was clearly in contempt of Congress. The decision does not bind the court to uphold the committee if and when it finds violations in the procedural record.

But the opinions in the cases serve again to illuminate a fixed dislike and distrust of the House committee by Chief Justice Warren and Justices Black, Douglas and Brennan. Despite the fact that Chairman Walter has put restraints on committee excesses, which the Supreme Court sternly rebuked on several occasions prior to the decision in the Braden case in 1959 that sustained an instant committee procedure, the group remains suspect by these four justices as a trampler beyond regeneration on the constitutional rights of individuals.

The rooted distrust of the committee by the dissenters, implicit in reaching this conclusion from a record where five other justices could not find it, is illustrated by the following analysis by Justice Black of the majority ruling:

"(It) means that the committee may engage in any inquiry a majority of this court happens to think could possibly be for a legitimate purpose whether that 'purpose' be the true reason for the inquiry or not. . . . Thus, in my view, the conclusion is inescapable that the only limitation on the committee's power to harass its opponents is the committee's own self-restraint, a characteristic which probably has not been predominant in the committee's work over the past four years."

Goals Sought in 'Present Controversy' Could Act as a Boomerang, He Believes

Atlanta—Without expressing an opinion as to the merits of our present controversial situation here in Atlanta and throughout Georgia, one wonders if the goals that are being sought will, through the force of circumstances under present-day conditions, act as a boomerang.

This program, instead of bringing the entire population closer together, is drawing them apart. The leadership of all elements should be able to see what this leads to and what injustices are being done today to those who have in the past been real friends. The interest of the entire population demands that we again take stock and see whether the objectives we seek will run into serious difficulty if we do not meet conditions as they are—not like we wish there were.

It is discouraging to see us make one step forward and two or possibly three steps backward.

A FEARFUL CITIZEN.

'Martha' Has Share 'Of Lovely Music'

Rome—Thanks to your critic Roscoe Dudley for coming to the defense of "Martha," that charming Met opera that no one likes—except the audiences.

Some critics have said that the Met ought to bring Atlanta some other German opera this year. What other opera? Wagner is out because the technical problems are impossible for a road company. Richard Strauss? We've had plenty of his admittedly fine operas these past years.

The Met hasn't done "Martha" since 1929. Are the snobs suggesting that it just die? Once in over 30 years certainly isn't too often.

As I see it, they object because it's too cheerful, too light, almost an operetta. But they could say the same thing about Richard Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" and Johann Strauss' "Gypsy Baron" or "Fledermaus." In Mozart's time, they criticized the masterpiece "Marriage of Figaro" for the same reason. Certainly "Martha," with arias like Last Rose of Summer and M'appari, has its share of lovely music.

Atlantan Suggests Work for Students

Atlanta—For quality the human character demands discipline and education. The colored people need help in applying these facts. One of the Eastern cities is fulfilling this need on a voluntary basis. This principle could be used here. The colored students could go into the homes of their neighbors and help the young folk with their school work. This would take them off the streets and out of trouble. It would give them constructive work to do and help their own race. Atlanta is filled with white denominational preachers who probably have enough education to start the ball rolling. There are other white people who would be glad to lend a helping hand on a worth-while program. The one they are on now is leading them to chaos and will never educate.

CLEFF J. SMITH.

Harold Martin

He Counts Wolves By Tape Recorder

TORONTO—Last night, at dinner in a quiet suburb of Toronto called Richmond Hill, a young nature lover named Douglas Pimlott turned on a small tape recorder. From it, in a moment, came the wildest, loneliest, wierdest of all earthly sounds, the howl of a timber wolf, speaking his sorrows to the frozen night.

The first long lonesome howl died away and then, fainter and farther off, there came a thin tenor tremolo, the voice of another wolf, answering it. Then came a medley of many howls, as all the pack came in.

It was warm in the room and quiet, but the sound of this authentic call of the night conjured up in the mind a picture of forests, silent with snow, of high hard stars and the black night aglow with the shimmer of Northern lights. It was the sound of the Canada that few Canadians themselves ever see, the frozen land that stretches northward to the Pole.

Mr. Pimlott, a slender, bald, soft-voiced man, is probably Canada's greatest authority on moose. He is rapidly becoming its most distinguished expert on wolves. The recordings he has made are merely the beginning of what he hopes will be a lifetime study of the great gaunt gray beast who somehow still survives in the North though every man's hand is turned against him. He makes his recordings himself. By uttering a long lonely wolf howl himself, he induces a captive wolf to howl back. He tapes this mournful answer and then travels some 200 miles to the north, to a forested area known to be inhabited by wolves. He finds a lonely forest clearing on a little open hill from which sound will carry far. He then turns on his recorder and, through an amplifier, sends the long howl ringing through the silent forest. Then he listens. Faint and far off comes the answering howl of a hunting pack. He plays his taped record again. The answering howl comes closer. If he is lucky, on a good night when the wolves are moving about, he will soon find himself sitting alone in his clearing, or on his hill, while all around him, some of them as close as a hundred yards, the wild wolves encircle him, howling their heads off in a weird and haunting chorus.

By such means, Mr. Pimlott is able to take a census of the wolf population of a certain area, for frequently, from various points of the compass, he will get answering howls from as many as three wolf packs at once.

Far to the west in the cattle country, Canadians are vigorously poisoning wolves, destroying them by the hundreds as predators. Mr. Pimlott does not object to this. In the timber country, though, he does not see the need for it. The wolf is part of God's plan. He keeps the deer population down, so that the deer do not multiply in numbers so great the range will not support them. The wolves therefore help keep the delicate balance of nature between the number of beasts and the food supply that will support them.

There is a place, Mr. Pimlott feels, for men and wolves both, and he for one is going to see that the wolf survives.

High School Basketball Comes To the Coliseum---and Memories

Now that it is fashionable to identify one's self as an old sports writer this introduction is to serve as that identification. And this old sports writer innocently walked Wednesday into Alexander Memorial Coliseum and the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored AAA basketball tournament to fill out a lunch break and found himself sitting on a hard seat the rest of the afternoon shouting and second-guessing more than the average fanatic. Once I covered high school basketball games for 40 straight nights, excluding Sunday, serving probation to Col. Ed Danforth and Guy Tiller and I swore on all kinds of oaths that these tired eyes would never watch another ball bounce.

But with the yelling and screaming of Cadets from Marist, and the students of Grady, Druid Hills and North Fulton it was hard to be non-combative.

This is a great thing that the Georgia High School Association and The Constitution does—this sponsoring of the Class AAA tournament.

Here to the Coliseum come the best of the basketball players in the state's largest schools. Only way to improve the show is to throw the thing wide open, letting in teams of all classifications—from C to AAA.

Then a true champion would wear the crown.

But that is not the purpose of this piece: It is to tell of the ones who are here.

The clean, clear-eyed athletes who trot onto the polished hardwood under the wonderful dome that is the Coliseum are all grasping at glory. This is as close as most will get. Some, the great ones, will return to the state's largest schools. But to most this is it—the end of athletic careers which made them special at their schools and among their people.

Those who would de-emphasize high school athletics should see this setting. Four, five, six and on up to 7,000 fans from all over the state banded in their own bond of brotherhood—believing they are the best.

Ten years or more have passed and a lot has changed.

But not the faces of the faithful. Sam Burke, executive secretary of the GHSA, has never run a bad tournament, but this may be his best. Charlie Roberts, Georgia's best known prep sports writer, is there as I remember him, cigar and all. Charlie was tough to write against.

And there were others. Slim Jimmy Johnson calling the games, but I recall him best running beside Charlie Bowen, and then, after a tournament, splitting a steak. Big Jack McKinney, who has never been wrong, gave himself credit for Columbus' defeating Druid Hills. "Run 'em," Jack said and Columbus ran 'em, 65-49, but I hated to see old friend Elmer Morrow sad in defeat. Mercer Harris, welcomed at cage games but unwelcome at diamonds because he is a scout, talked of spring and Tech's Joe Pittard forgot floor play to boost baseball. Al Ciraldo, Red Mullins, Ned West, Whack Hyder, Poochie Hartsfield, Spec Landrum—all in one man's memory.

It was good for an old sports writer to go back.

I think I'll do it again. There are still two more nights before some team walks away the winner.

This Prescription for Misery Is Sure to Work Everytime

He looked at the size of the pill, then he looked into my eyes and said, "Daddy, have I got to swallow that thing?" I'll admit that the capsule looked like the ones I had given my ponies: long, black, unpalatable. The lad had about decided that here was a case where the medicine was worse than the disease. Some of the prescriptions that we write for ourselves make the child's capsule look small as a speck.

For instance, there is a prescription for misery that works every time. One way to be perfectly miserable is to convince yourself that you are not appreciated. What, with the much-vaunted reminders that we need to belong, that praise is more essential than breakfast, that expressions of love and appreciation should be forthcoming each day, no wonder ours is a mania that thrives on "we love you and appreciate you." Usually the ones who expect these verbal bouquets are the ones who don't deserve them; otherwise they wouldn't be wasting their time looking for them.

Instead, one's motivation should spring from another source: living for the sheer joy of living, working for the sake of working, serving because the process has its own intrinsic compensations. These are reasons enough if another person never granted a word of appreciation. The words help and it is an ugly commentary on our vocabulary not to express them more often. Nonetheless, if one wants to be miserable, convince himself that he really isn't appreciated.

Then if you would intensify the misery, listen to all the criticism about you. Roll through your mind more than once the adverse statements, the carping cracks, the slicing sarcasm. Give quarter to the nasty insinuations. Nurse the not-so-white lies. The results

Anyone who gets things done will be criticized. The price of progress must always reckon with human tongues. To incur the wrath of the slovenly, the dim of vision, the scanty of faith actually is a compliment.

Just ignore the critic—all but those constructive critics who have cultured the fine art of helpful comment, positive suggestion, and the willingness to speak the truth in love. When misunderstanding or slander have called the plays, remember that mud will brush off easier after it has dried.

Returning good for evil was Greek the day it was spoken. Tragically, it still is! But if you want to be miserable, try to juggle that impossible duo of getting things done and having everybody compliment you in the process. When one thinks he has done this, either the thing wasn't worth doing or under the guise of compliments, the people were lying. So, there it is—a two-fold prescription—guaranteed to make you miserable.

Deploring Illegitimacy Is No Way to Cut the Birth Rate

This was one session of the General Assembly I thought we were going to struggle through without making ourselves look ridiculous before the world. Our legislators acquitted themselves creditably on the matter of keeping our schools open. They did some intramural squabbling about fiscal matters but there was a dearth of the kind of idiot communiques they used to dash off at drop of a privileged resolution to the President, the Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court. (Remember the cutie which called for the impeachment of the court a few years back?) On the whole they tended to present a respectable face to the outside world with a minimum of spleen-venting in resolutions.

A lot of credit is due the new committee system. In previous sessions a resolution had but to be introduced and it was almost automatically passed. Under the system all resolutions got a going over in committee and those that clearly served no useful purpose except to get something off some gentleman's chest, were discreetly sidetracked.

Looking on the bright side, that may be the fate of the latest don't-f-e-e-d-illegitimate-children tirade. This one was unloosed in resolution form by Rep. Harry Nixon of Irwin County the other day. It was read, sent to the rules committee and there it may happily languish for the remainder of the session. If it should emerge, pass the House and go on to the Senate, probably the worst that will happen is that the poor, tired clerks will type it up nicely, get it signed in pretty flowing script and dispatch it to Washington. I don't know what happens to such a billet doux in Washington but I don't imagine they create much of a stir. If other state legislatures are as prolific as ours has been in the past there must be bales of such resolutions around.

The gesture is meaningless except as it puts Georgia on record as one of the few states in the Union so steamed up about the race problem that we would deny a paltry relief check to innocent children. Everybody who ever introduces legislation against illegitimate children always explains privately that it is aimed at "worthless nigras down home" and no little white girl, victim of human folly, will ever be so cruelly penalized.

There must be more useful and productive ways of tackling the problem of illegitimacy, which, everybody admits, is a problem. There are groups studying the problem, even one from the General Assembly, if I'm not mistaken.

Meanwhile, "deploring" in a resolution to Congress doesn't seem a terribly practical or intelligent way to cut the birth rate.

News Ban At Colleges Considered

By BRUCE GALPHIN

A resolution asking the Board of Regents to bar the press from college campuses during any future desegregation crisis will go before the House Rules Committee Friday.

The resolution declares that press coverage of the University of Georgia troubles was in a large part "responsible for the disorders which occurred."

Rep. David Newton of Colquitt, principal author of the resolution, said it was not designed to restrict freedom of the press but to "preserve order."

AUTHORS LISTED

As printed and distributed by the House clerk's office, the resolution lists authors as Newton, Representatives Ross Bowen of Toombs, Leonard Morris and Frank Branch of Tift, Ben Ross of Lincoln and others.

Morris stated Thursday that he did not sign the resolution, that he was opposed to it, would fight it and would ask that the Rules Committee remove his name from it.

In other action on school matters Thursday, the House approved a resolution by Newton which would order the attorney general to provide each school board in the state with an exhaustive study of pupil placement regulations.

THE PLAN

The resolution to bar the press from college campuses during crises states:

"... recent events attendant upon the admission to the University of Georgia of two Negro students have brought about severe restrictions upon the right of students to assemble peacefully."

"... although restraints have been placed upon students, no action has been taken to prevent others from going on the campus, particularly members of the press and representatives of other news media."

"... it has been shown that the large number of newspaper, magazine, radio and television representatives was as much responsible for the disorders which occurred..."

URGES BOARD

The resolution then proposes that the Board of Regents be urged to "adopt policies which will prevent representatives of the press, magazines, television, radio and other news media from going on the property of any unit or segment of the University System during such times as shall be designated by the Board of Regents."

The resolution suggests that the regents' policies include provisions allowing off-campus interviews or special news conferences.

"The General Assembly," the resolution states, "hereby declares that it is not the intention of this body to seek to prohibit the free gathering of news, but it is the intention of the General Assembly to seek to prevent actions which are detrimental to the students in all units of the University System."

NOT A BAN

"The General Assembly further declares that inasmuch as newspaper and magazine articles and television and radio broadcasts have besetted all persons to take all actions to prevent occurrences similar to those which happened in Athens, it is only fitting and proper that such news media be willing also to take any steps necessary to prevent such occurrences," the resolution concludes.

State to Aid Water Line Relocations

The Georgia Senate gave final legislative approval Thursday to a bill which would allow the state to pay for or participate in the cost of relocating municipally owned utility lines in connection with state highway improvements.

The proposal, heralded as one which will help small towns and big cities, got a vote of 33-0.

The Senate passed a number of bills, most of them non-controversial. One changed the name of the School for Mental Defectives to the Gracewood School. Another allows rural mail carriers to display amber colored safety lights on their automobiles.

Another bill would exempt property of non-profit professional societies — like medical associations — from ad valorem taxation, where the purpose of the societies is to study and advance the practice of such professions.

HOUSE BILL

A House bill backed by Sen. Hamilton McWhorter of Lexington would strike out at fraudulent schemes used to avoid the payment of telephone tolls. It passed by a 34-0 vote.

The Senate approved two bills expanding provisions of the teacher retirement system. One, which was approved 39-0, would provide a basis of longevity retirement for teachers with 40 years of service.

Another retirement bill which passed 33-0 allows teachers to get extra pension benefits by increasing their contributions to the system by 1 per cent.

The Senate easily passed an appropriations resolution providing a $75,000 allocation — when the money is available — to restore the old Confederate stronghold of Ft. McAllister in Bryan County.

The Senate approved a bill to allow employees of the Air National Guard and the National Guard, who are paid with federal funds, to come under the employees retirement plan through contributions paid by the federal government.

Senate Unit Defers Crop Bill To Give Foes a Hearing Today

The Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee has postponed until Friday action on a House bill that sets up commission systems to promote and regulate crops and farm commodities.

Committee Chairman Sen. Dan F. Hart of Quitman said that a hearing would be held at 8:30 a.m. Friday to let opposition to the bill be heard.

Hart said the major opposition comes from farm groups who complain they have not had time to study the bill thoroughly to see how it affects them. Several members of the committee have made the same objection.

CAMPBELL APPEARS

The panel met for about two hours in executive session Thursday afternoon discussing what to do with the bill.

Commissioner Phil Campbell said the act would allow Georgia farm products to compete favorably in the interstate trade and cited California's success under a similar act.

Under the bill, nine-man commissions consisting of four ex-

Panel Ready to Probe Favoring of Negroes

A five-man "educational rights committee" was named Thursday by the Senate Committee on Educational Matters to probe any reported favoritism to integrated students in Georgia.

Named to the interim committee were Senators W. Tom Veazey, Jimmy Dykes, Ed Clary, Dan Hart and W. C. Long.

The committee was created under a resolution jointly authored by Senators Hart and Gordon Knox Jr. to study any school in Georgia where integrated classes are begun under federal court orders. The committee would look into any favoritism shown to Negro students by school officials.

Vandiver-Byrd Budget Wins in House, 137-65

last week of a House action which defeated the governor's original budget proposal, 172-8. The comeback by the governor and lieutenant governor Thursday reversed the tables.

Floor Leader Frank Twitty, who voted against the Byrd-Vandiver bill, joined Smith in saying the governor made an important concession when he agreed to set up a budget bureau in the executive offices.

3 AMENDMENTS

Three minor amendments will require Senate agreement Friday before the $412.4 million spending bill will go to the governor for his signature.

Left intact were the key points in the spending measure which the Senate passed 42-11 Tuesday. They gave $300 pay raises to teachers, $250 increases to school bus drivers and left the governor's power over surplus funds untouched.

The administration forces slapped down an effort by DeKalb Rep. James Mackay to cut the spending measure from a two-year bill to appropriations for a single year.

122 TO 66

The vote was 122 to 66 against Mackay's proposal, and Rep. Charles Pannell, leader of the Vandiver-Byrd House forces, utilized his strongest weapon to stop it.

Pannell read a letter from Vandiver which was placed on the House minutes in which the governor promised:

1. Creation of a joint legislative committee of House and Senate members to study the budget systems of other states in order to learn how the spending measure can be handled best.

2. Employment of a group of staff assistants in the governor's office to help in state financial affairs including future budget messages.

3. Activation of the State Finance Commission to meet on a quarterly basis to consider budgetary matters.

These three concessions formed the basis of a plan worked out at midday by a delegation of legislators meeting with Vandiver. They had been offered to the House Appropriations Committee earlier this week and rejected.

Again Thursday, the Appropriations Committee met and voted 23-12 not to call off the fight against the Byrd-Vandiver spending measure and accept these concessions.

Rep. Wilson Wilkes of Cook County, one of the chief opponents, told the committee he would fight the bill on the House floor, and he did later.

Wilkes flourished a red handkerchief on the House floor and recalled that Vandiver had used the phrase "red flag" when his earlier budget bill was taken up to the House.

But Wilkes stuffed the flag back in his pocket, saying "I'm taking it down now" because of the higher budget bill offered by the governor and Byrd will cause a tax increase.

"Why should we keep pyramiding the expenses of our government? Every department is increased materially over last year in this bill," Wilkes said.

Rep. Robert Andrews of Hall County, one of the more vociferous opponents to the governor's bill, expressed appreciation to the leadership of the House, "for they have stood as men to be trampled under by a machine." Andrews said it was "one of the proudest moments of my life" because he was going to refuse "to kneel before the threats of a financially irresponsible despot" and vote for the governor's bill.

Rep. William M. Fleming of Richmond County asked what happened to 172 members who voted for the original house appropriations bill. "Why are you now ready to reverse your position?" he demanded. "Why? Has there been such a radical change in the economic situation or is it political expediency?"

Rep. Jimmie NeSmith of Meriwether County, speaking for the administration bill, said he "resented anybody saying I sold my vote." He urged the House to stand by the governor who had, he said, demonstrated his fiscal responsibility.

Rep. James Floyd of Chattooga County, opposing the bill, declared Vandiver "wants legislative independence like Herman Talmadge wants Martin Luther King to serve as his executive director."

Among early speakers advocating passing of the governor's bill were Rep. Wimbric Walker of Telfair County and Rep. Wallace Jernigan of Clinch County.

In the committee session, Speaker Smith said he had told the governor that the chief executive should not have complete control of all budget funds.

LAUDS ACCOMPLISHMENTS

"Downstairs, I caught the devil for selling the governor out," Smith said, although he said he tried to represent Vandiver's wishes for as long as he could.

Smith said he would not attempt to tell the committee members how to vote, but he added that the promises Vandiver made are "good accomplishments for the taxpayers of Georgia" and indicated that they should accept the governor's offer.

Twitty, another of the legislative leaders who rebelled at Vandiver's budget bill said "I'll admit he hasn't given too much" but argued that the committee members should accept the offer.

Asked by a committeeman if the governor offered the concessions because he feared he did not have the necessary votes in the House, Twitty said he believed, "Vandiver has the votes."

"The governor has not gotten scared and called the meetings (of the past week)," Twitty said. "They have been instigated by some of us."

FEARS FOR INNOCENT

If the committee decided to take the fight to the floor, Twitty said, "Lots of innocent people are going to get hurt."

But the committee was determined, Andrews said, "I have got guts enough to stand up," and fight against the committee bill.

The committee roll-call vote sent the hottest fight of several years to the floor.

FUND BOOST DENIED

Before beating down Mackay's amendment that would have limited the spending bill to one year, the House defeated a move by Rep. Culver Kidd of Baldwin which would have boosted Milledgeville State Hospital spending by another $250,000.

Senate Votes Garage for Capitol Cars

Legislation to boost development of the proposed park and underground parking garage on property across the street from the State Capitol was approved by the State Senate Thursday and goes to the governor for signing into law.

Approved 32-1 was a House bill which allows the State Office Building Authority to issue up to $4 million worth of revenue bonds to finance the project, which would be self-liquidating.

Sen. Gordon Knox Jr. of Hazlehurst and Sen. Charlie Brown of Atlanta explained that the property for the project will be jointly acquired by Atlanta and Fulton County for about a million dollars and then will be deeded to the state as the site of the project. The garage would be leased to a private operator on a bid basis.

The underground garage will include space for about 800 cars and will be topped by a park, the two senators said.

Vandiver Gets Bill to Increase Vote Rolls Here

By MARION GAINES

A bill to permit the registration of Fulton County voters in municipalities outside Atlanta—which has been touted as an almost sure-fire way of increasing voters' rolls here—was approved Thursday by the Georgia House.

The House also okayed a bill for Fulton County creating an office of voter registrar separate from the tax commissioner's office.

mission by special election rather than appointment (by the commission itself) as is done now.

Indications were that Smith and Brown might try to "swap out" their differences on the two bills.

THIRD ATTEMPT

This is the third straight year the Fulton delegation has tried to get enacted the municipal registration bill. Two years ago it was vetoed by Gov. Vandiver; a year ago, it was held up in subcommittee, reportedly at the governor's request.

It now lacks only Vandiver's signature to become law. Sen. Charlie Brown of Atlanta said he received some encouragement that the governor will sign it into law this time.

Meanwhile, several pieces of local legislation appeared headed for the discard pile unless the members of the divisive Fulton delegation manage to heal their outspoken differences.

AGAINST ZOO BILL

Sen. Brown said Thursday he doesn't see how he can go along with Rep. M. M. (Mugsy) Smith's proposal that would provide an estimated $1 million for capital improvements at the Grant Park Zoo over the next five years.

The bill would allocate to the zoo for 1961-65 one-half of the City Parks Department's half-mill tax that provides some $450,000-$500,000 yearly for permanent improvements in Atlanta parks.

Sen. Brown's position is that the parks department will get the money anyway but that earmarking any portion of it for the zoo is a matter best left for the Atlanta aldermanic board to decide under their budgetary powers.

Smith said Thursday he has doubts he can go along with Brown's bill that would fill vacancies on the Fulton County Com-

3 Children Fall Under Ice, Die

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI)—Three small children drowned late Thursday afternoon when they fell through lake ice at a playground near here.

The three children apparently wandered out onto the ice on Pleasant Lake in West Bloomfield Township and the ice weakened by recent warm weather broke. Dead are Linda Marie Pettibone, 5, her sister Cheryl Ann, 3, and Rickie Rosen, also 3.

but not Ross Allen. Allen and his nine-man crew were mildly disappointed when they captured only 79 live rattlers in this south Georgia area. The catch was far short of the rate needed for Allen to meet his self-imposed quota of 1,000 rattlesnakes by next Tuesday. Some snakes will be used at his Silver Springs, Fla., reptile institute. Others will be milked of valuable venom and sold for rattlesnake meat.

Too Few Drunks Force Police Cut

FITZGERALD—A scarcity of drunks is forcing this south Georgia town to tighten its purse strings. Police court fines for drunkenness have fallen off to a fraction of normal, bringing a reduction in city revenues, according to Police Chief Jack Vaughn. He attributes the rise in sobriety to a tightening of the money supply. With fewer drunks to worry with, the chief was forced to lay off two policemen.

Crash at McRae Kills Woman and Boy, 15

McRAE—Two persons were killed Thursday in a traffic crash 10 miles south of McRae on U.S. 441, the State Patrol said. Dead were Mrs. Alene Sellers Sutton, 31, and Jerry D. Sutton, 15, both of Rte. 2, McRae. The patrol said one vehicle crossing 441 on a hill crest was struck by another.

40 Students Charged in 2 Sit-Ins

Fulton Criminal Court accusations charging 40 students with violation of the state's anti-trespass laws were filed Thursday.

Trial dates have not been set but will be soon, court officials said. Still pending are accusations against 52 others who participated in attempted sit-ins at several Atlanta restaurants.

Assistant Solicitor James L. Webb said accusations have been signed against 26 Negro students arrested for refusing to leave the premises of a cafeteria operated by H. J. Sprayberry in the Peachtree-Seventh Building. Webb said Sprayberry signed the accusations.

SIGNS ACCUSATIONS

Thursday afternoon, George C. Coombs, who was in charge of The Coffee Shop, 1 Forsyth St., NW, during a sit-in demonstration, signed accusations against 14 students.

Accusations against 35 students who participated in sit-ins at Denny's Grill, 66 Forsyth St., SW, have not yet been signed by owner Don Calbos, Webb said. He said he expects them to be signed soon.

Also pending are accusations against seven Negro ministers, one white minister, and 13 students arrested for refusing to leave the Terminal Station where they sought food service.

DOCTOR CASE

Commitments are still pending against eight doctors arrested at the Biltmore Hotel Cafeteria.

Fulton Criminal Court Solicitor John I. Kelley said he did not know whether the cases will be tried separately or in groups. This will depend upon the desires of the defendants, he said. Each case, as each accusation is individually filed, could be a separate trial, he said.

"We prosecute to protect people in their civil right to select their own customers or own associates," Kelley commented. "No person has the civil right to invade another person's civil rights."

TRESPASS MEASURES

Students are being charged in the accusations with violation of the 1960-passed law which has become known as the anti-trespass law. The law has been upheld by the Georgia Court of Appeals.

The students were arrested in the recent wave of sit-in demonstrations. They are out on $100 bond after most of them voluntarily remained in jail for about two weeks.

OTHERS NAMED

Those named in accusations signed by Sprayberry are:

Laurine Weaver, Robert Y. Whitley, Leroy Washington, Yvonne Tucker, Solomon Taylor, Lenora Taitt, Herschelle Sullivan, Christine Sparks, Charles Smith, William T. Robinson, Johnnie Price, Charles Person, Ralph M. Moore, Ernest Moore.

Daniel Mitchell, Harold Middlebrook, Lonnie Cecil King Jr., Richard Hope, Frank Holloway, Willford Hepburn, Suzon Grimes, Leon Greene, Marsha Goodwin, Gene Edward Flowers, William Beasley and Harold Andrews.

Those named in accusations signed by Coombs are:

Runelle Lawrence, Roberta Smith, Jesse J. Harris, Shirley Ann Smith, William N. Dallas, Samuel E. Watts III, Shirley Dalton, Virginia C. Brown, Lydia Marie Tucker, Gwendolyn Wells, Gwinnett Rhodes, Birdie Hicks, Bessie Smith and Norma June Wilson.

House Balks At Peace Officers' Bill

The House refused to pass a bill Thursday which would have added more men to the rolls of the Peace Officers Retirement Fund.

Rep. Chappelle Matthews of Clarke asked for postponement of the final vote on the bill after a group of legislators objected that the bill eventually would cost counties much more money.

Spalding Rep. Arthur Bolton argued that the bill "lowers the requirements for qualifying for the peace officers retirement fund."

Under this bill, Bolton said, "a man can serve three years and become eligible for retirement benefits." He added that inclusion of additional officers could make it necessary some day "to call on your county to make the funds available to make the retirement fund actually sound."

Rep. Herschel Lovett of Laurens added, "If we keep on including more men, we will eventually have to put up the funds (from the state) to pay off the retirement benefits."

In other action, the House passed 135 to 0 a measure which would allow milk distribution controls to be imposed by Agriculture Commissioner Phil Campbell.

Cafe Operator Held in Decatur Drug Charge

A Decatur restaurant operator Thursday was held for DeKalb Superior Court on a dangerous-drug charge, police said.

Mrs. Gladys H. Morgan, 40, of Rte. 3, Covington highway, Decatur, was placed under $1,000 bond, Capt. L. B. Mothershed said.

Mothershed said Mrs. Morgan, operator of a restaurant on East Ponce de Leon Avenue, was taken into custody Wednesday.

A man leaving the restaurant was found in possession of 29 tablets, Mothershed said, and a marked $5 bill used in the purchase was recovered.

Detective L. A. Cole and Patrolman A. E. Hall assisted in the investigation.

Senate Reconsiders Jekyll Pay Claim

The Georgia Senate Thursday voted 26-9 to reconsider the action it took Wednesday in refusing a resolution to compensate a contractor who worked on a paving job on Jekyll Island for night time and Sunday work.

But before the upper house voted on the reconsideration motion, the name of Gov. Vandiver and his authority to negotiate contracts was injected into the argument.

Some senators, including Sen. Jimmy Dykes of Cochran, chief opponent of the measure, challenged the authority of the governor to negotiate any contracts, while others said that if the governor had negotiated any, they'd have to go along with paying any debts resulting from them.

The Senate concurred with Sen. Dykes Wednesday in declining to pay the claim of Seaboard Construction Co. for $7,637.26 for work it did in paving picnic areas and road stubs on the island. Dykes charged the company was seeking to get payment over and above a contract on which the firm already had received $6,665.73.

Thursday morning, however, five senators said they had checked into the matter and felt it was a "just debt and should be paid."

Sen. Charles E. Dews of Edison, who made the motion for re-

H. B. No. 700—To provide for establishment of a "Safety Division" in the Labor department to make provisions for the safety of workers. Introduced by Rogers of Paulding and Others. Assigned to Industrial Relations Committee.

H. R. No. 240-701—To create the Public Health Laws Revision Committee. Introduced by Barber of Jackson.

on the island, Glynn County was authorized to handle the work. Since Seaboard was the only firm available to do the job, the firm was authorized to do the job, Sen. Dews explained.

He quoted a letter from M. L. Shadburn of the State Highway Department saying "the governor's office instructed to have the work done."

Similar explanations came from Senators Mark W. Fitzpatrick of Jeffersonville, D. B. Blalock of Newnan and Spence Grayson of Savannah. Blalock said State Highway Board Chairman Jim Gillis had told him "said it should be paid."

He said the governor had ordered that the paving of the picnic areas and road stubs be completed in time for the governors' conference. He said Seaboard was "persuaded" to do it on a "cost plus" basis.

Union City Takes A New Chief—Again

Union City has a new police chief—again.

The City Council—the mayor said as in past instances he wasn't informed—fired Ralph Farr as chief just a few hours after Farr was reported arrested in Newnan on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Then the City Council—still without the mayor's knowledge—hired Marcel West, a city patrolman, as chief.

Mayor W. H. Y. Thornton said as far as he was concerned the whole thing was invalid, but he lost his last argument with the council when he tried to keep then Police Chief Doc Houston on the job after the council had fired him back in 1959.

The council hired James E. Bryant as chief to replace Houston. The mayor insisted Houston was still chief and lawbreakers had two police chiefs to contend with in Union City for a while. The council won the legal battle over the job, however, and Bryant stayed as chief until last summer when he either quit or was fired, according to your source of information.

Chief West said Thursday he was the chief and was going to enforce the law.

The mayor said Arvin Landrum was supposed to be in line for the job.

But West has got the badge that is labeled chief.

Dr. Sneed To Give Up St. Luke's Rectorship

Dr. Wilson W. Sneed will step down the week after Easter as rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

U.S. Strategy Parley Will Hear of Peril

The Georgia Seminar on American Strategy, scheduled March 10-11 at the Biltmore Hotel, will hear experts on communism discuss that philosophy's danger to America.

Dr. Richard F. Staar of the political science department at Emory, will speak on communism in Eastern Europe. He is a former chief of program analysis for Radio Free Europe, intelligence specialist with the State department and a former intelligence officer with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Dr. Richard L. Walker, chairman of the department of international studies of the University of South Carolina, and faculty member of the National War College, Washington, will talk on the threat of Communist China to the free world.

The seminar will be attended by a group of Georgians chosen from businesses and professions. The seminar is sponsored by the Third U.S. Army, Rebel Chapter, Young Presidents Organization, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, Institute for American Strategy, Associated Industries of Georgia, and the National Association of Manufacturers.

He has been at St. Luke's since 1948, when he was named assistant rector. He became rector four years later.

Dr. Sneed, in a letter to his parishioners, said his decision to leave St. Luke's was "the result of a great deal of prayer."

"It is a taxing and sometimes a wearying job to be rector of a church of so many responsibilities, but I never passed a day that I did not gain from you far more than I ever gave you," the rector said.

Dr. Sneed plans to study church history and English literature for a year at Union Theological Seminary and Columbia University in New York.

A graduate of Emory University, Dr. Sneed took his doctor of divinity degree in 1957 from the University of the South. He has been a board member of the Legal Aid Society, Protestant Radio and Television Center, Atlanta Civic Ballet, Red Cross and English Speaking Union.

Of St. Luke's 2,200 communicants, 600 were added since Dr. Sneed became rector.

Dr. Sneed plans to become rector of a small out-of-state church when he completes his college work.

Plane Drop Charged

HAVANA (AP)—The government-controlled press said Thursday an airplane "dropped" from the United States "dropped" leaflets on Manzanillo, a town in rebel-infested south-central Cuba. No details were given.

Major Crimes Off Here Despite Big U.S. Rise

Total crime here for the month was 9 per cent under the same period of last year.

However, last month a total of 670 major crimes were reported, compared with 739 for a similar period of last year.

Aggravated assault cases showed slight increase in Atlanta during February. Homicide cases were the same as last year, and all other categories were well under last year's figures.

One homicide occurred during February and one was reported last February. Rape dropped from four last year to one this year. Robberies for the month totaled 27, one under last year.

A total of 40 assault cases were reported for the month, three more than in the same period of last year. Burglaries numbered 320, which was 17 under February, 1960. Auto larcenies totaled 281 for the month, 51 fewer than in the same month last year.

In burglary, the department noted 31 fewer residence burglaries for the month and 14 more business house entries.

Here are the crime figures for January and February, 1961, compared with the same period of 1960:

	1961	1960
Homicide	9	8
Rape	9	10
Robbery	51	60
Assault	64	65
Burglary	621	730
Auto larceny	547	596

U.S.-Philippine Base Talks in Home Stretch

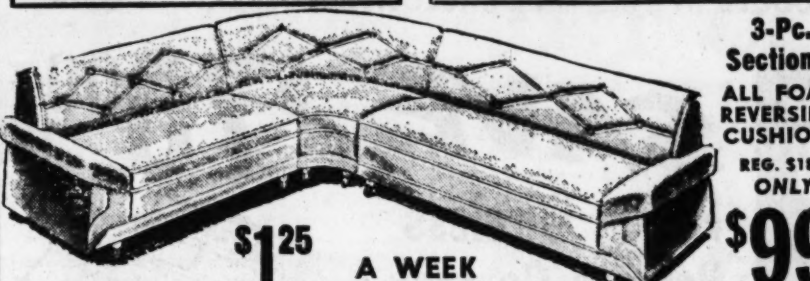

MANILA (AP)—Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano said Thursday the five-year-old U. S.-Philippines talks for renewing their 1947 military bases agreement are now in the "home stretch."

Barring unexpected circumstances, Serrano said, they should be concluded before the end of next week.

He made the announcement after a two-hour conference with the American negotiating panel.

The Philippines wants increased jurisdiction over off-duty, on-base crimes committed by American servicemen. The existing agreement gives the Philippines jurisdiction over crimes committed off the bases, while the United States has jurisdiction over on-base offenses.

U.N. Builds Up Force in Congo

U.N. efforts to re-establish the economy of the former Belgian colony.

The secretary general reported that his estimates would include the pay of "approximately 340 international staff members and 1,400 locally recruited Congolese staff members." These would be chargeable to the military budget.

NOT COVERED

The estimates, however, he said, "do not cover the cost of international financial aid" to the Congo. This has been estimated at $100 million for the first year.

Hammarskjold made plain his estimates were tentative. Events, he said, would shape the "size, composition and operations of the force" and the logistic support it might need.

With regard to future financing, he said the U.N. had drawn on many of its resources to maintain its effort in the Congo in 1960 and in the first months of 1961.

The assembly, he noted, had authorized him to spend only $24 million for the period from Jan. 1 to March 31, and this limited amount had been met by "borrowing from the special accounts in the custody of the secretary general, after depletion of the working-capital fund."

BORROWED SUMS

The sums, borrowed from affiliated branches of the United Nations, Hammarskjold reported, "need to be repaid as soon as contributions are received."

Hammarskjold's report gave a clearer picture of the difficulties of keeping a working military force in the enormous territory of the Congo. Because of the distances involved and the side dispersal of the various national contingents, he noted, one of the most expensive items has been the establishment of an air delivery service, linking outposts with the few bases from which they may draw supplies.

Included in the military budget is provision for the daily expenditure of $1.60 a man for food for the troops of various countries.

REST, RECREATION

The world organization also must provide for rest and recreation of the soldiers and for their eventual repatriation. The nations which furnish the troops do not pay for their transport to Africa or back. Arrangements are being made, said Hammarskjold, for ship rather than air transportation for rotated troops. Previously, Hammarskjold had been understood to have informed his advisory committee on the Congo that a force of 20,000 men would be sufficient.

The withdrawal of troops by Guinea and the United Arab Republic has cut the force to short of 14,000.

The figure of 25,000, Hammarskjold indicated, would yield an average strength of 23,400 officers and men for all of 1961. This, he thought, would be enough, short of emergency developments.

Kennedy Orders State Disaster Aid exclusive residential area surrounding the resort.

The Flint also is expected to cause some flooding late Friday in the Newton area.

Lake Allatoona in north Georgia rose to an all-time high mark Thursday and was still rising. It spilled over the Acworth sub-impoundment dam for the second time in its 11-year history.

The lake, still well within its reservoir basin, has caused little damage to property, except for upending a few boats.

And the Chattahoochee River floods rolled on toward the Jim Woodruff Reservoir after causing extensive damage at West Point and Columbus. It also forced Army engineers to take emergency measures to protect dam construction areas at Fort Gaines and Columbia, Ala.

President Kennedy's disaster-aid order will make aid available to communities in the Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth and Eighth Georgia Congressional Districts.

SURVEY PUSHED

Dial F. Sweeney, deputy director of the regional Civil Defense Mobilization office at Thomasville, said survey teams will be dispatched to the disaster areas immediately to determine the extent of damage and the amount of federal aid required.

Gov. Vandiver said he was "very pleased with the swift and positive response to my request for federal assistance."

Vandiver wired for the assistance through the office of Sen.

2 Slaying Suspects Already on Bond

Two men sought in the slaying of a Macon taxicab driver were under bond in Fulton County, one indicted on robbery charges and the other for burglary, Atlanta police said Thursday.

Macon police said murder warrants were issued Monday for Roy Edwin Morris, 24, and Richard A. Rogers, 33, in the pistol slaying Sunday of Harry Thompson Sr., 55-year-old taxicab driver.

Two young women also wanted by Macon authorities for questioning in the taxicab slaying face robbery charges in Fulton County, Detective Sgt. N. W. Flanagan and Detective R. E. Nickerson said.

SEARCH IN ATLANTA

Search for Morris and Rogers as well as the two women centered in Atlanta after an automobile which they were believed to have been using was found abandoned in Gwinnett County.

Flanagan and Nickerson said Roy Morris, his brother, James O. Morris Jr., 36, and the two women were indicted by the Fulton County Grand Jury Feb. 10 in the beating and robbery of a bakery company employee, Warren E. Hardigree, of 832 Stanton St., Decatur. Detectives said officers arrested the four persons a short time later and recovered identification papers belonging to Hardigree.

STILL BEING HELD

Roy Morris was released under $2,000 bond on the robbery charge, a spokesman at the Fulton County jail said. The two young women also were released on bond. Jail officials said James Morris Jr. was still held on the charge.

Flanagan and Nickerson said charges against the four in the Atlanta robbery had been scheduled for trial next Wednesday in Fulton Superior Court.

Detective E. S. Helms said Rogers was indicted Jan. 25 on a charge of burglary involving the service station where he was employed. Jail officials said Rogers also was free under $2,000 bond.

Officers said Rogers was given a conditional release from prison Oct. 30, 1960. They said he had a long record for burglary, forgery, rape, robbery and escape.

Thompson, the father of the assistant solicitor of Macon City Court, was killed Sunday night.

Lawmakers Switch, Back School Aid

Stephens of Athens, John W. Davis of Summerville, Phil Landrum of Jasper, and John J. Flynt Jr. of Griffin said they would go along with federal aid without federal control.

So did Rep. E. L. (Tick) Forrester of Leesburg and Rep. Iris Blitch of Homerville, but they expressed extreme skepticism that aid can be obtained without federal control, as did Rep. James C. Davis of Stone Mountain, who, like some of the others, pointed out he has not yet seen the Kennedy bill.

Hooded Youth Forces Girl to Drive 3 Hours

NORTH SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI)—A hooded youth forced a student nurse to drive him around at knifepoint for three hours Thursday. He then robbed her of $4 and fled.

Mrs. Jeanne Roberts, 21, said her abductor laughed "hysterically" as reports on her car radio told of the stabbing of a Pembroke College girl in Providence Tuesday night.

tee is holding a Senate-passed bill that would repeal the existing compulsory attendance law and replace it with a new one requiring attendance only in segregated school districts.

Rep. A. Delbert Bowen of Randolph County introduced a bill some weeks ago for outright repeal of the compulsory attendance law. The bill was cleared by the House Education Committee but the House Rules Committee has kept it off the calendar.

Even if passed by the House, the bill would have to be greatly modified to get through the Senate.

It's also doubtful if the House will act this year on election reform legislation. Early this month, the Senate passed four bills designed to clear up election-day confusion.

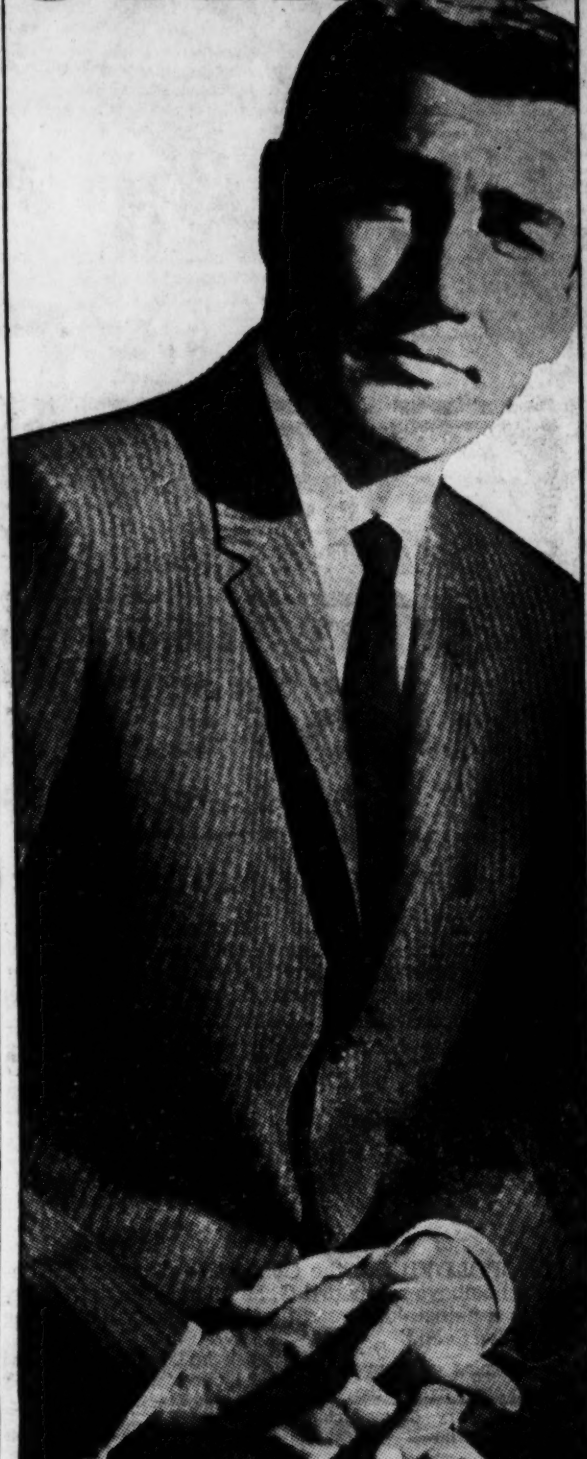

One of them would require the names of presidential and vice presidential candidates to be printed on ballots along with the names of the electors.

New Orleans' School Chief Gets Oregon Bid

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Dr. James F. Redmond, embattled superintendent of New Orleans public schools, is being considered for the superintendent's position in Portland, Ore., it was learned Thursday.

Redmond, who has been under fire from the legislature for complying with federal integration orders, earlier this week announced he would resign here at the end of the term. His contract ends at that time, and Redmond, who has been superintendent eight years, said he would not accept an offer to renew it.

44 Civilians Massacred By Vengeful Congolese

By HENRY TANNER
Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.

LEOPOLDVILLE—Congolese troops in Luluabourg, capital of Kasai Province, killed 44 civilians Tuesday and Wednesday in revenge for the slaying of three soldiers by a mob.

The massacre was announced by U.N. headquarters Thursday.

About 1,000 civilians fled in terror to U.N. headquarters in Luluabourg and were given sanctuary.

Here in the capital tension between the Congolese government and the U.N. mission reached the danger point as Congolese troops continued their attacks on soldiers of the international force.

The Congolese government repeated its appeal for "mobilization of all the nation's efforts" to prevent implementation of the latest resolution by the Security Council.

The government requested withdrawal of U.N. forces from Leopoldville airport and from the suburban area where most of the Congolese army's military installations are located.

The U.N. command in turn ordered its troops to open fire to "defend their arms."

The massacre at Luluabourg was by far the bloodiest instance of fratricide in the Congo since last August and September when the Congolese army, on orders of the late Premier Patrice Lumumba, intervened in tribal war in the same region and, according to official estimates at the time, killed several thousand tribesmen.

The massacre grew out of the appearance in Luluabourg a few days earlier of "rebel" soldiers from Stanleyville, seat of the rival regime headed by Antoine Gizenga.

The U.N. said a crowd of about 2,000 civilians gathered in front of U.N. headquarters and demanded release of Maj. Leonard Mulamba, officer of the Luluabourg garrison, who had been arrested by the army for having cooperated with the intruders.

MAJOR RELEASED

The major was released Tuesday night upon recommendation of U.N. officials. The crowd then went on a rampage and attacked Congolese soldiers with blunderbusses and rocks, killing three and wounding three, according to the U.N. spokesman.

After that bands of Congolese soldiers descended on the Afri-

188 Arrested In S. Carolina Negro March

By The Associated Press

Hymn-singing Negro students from a number of South Carolina cities marched on the state house at Columbia Thursday protesting what one student described as "the indignity and inhumanity of segregation."

Police broke up the demonstration and arrested 188 Negroes—including 65 women—one white youth and an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. They were charged with breach of the peace and bonds set at $50 each.

One student, identified as Betty Jean Wideman, 18, of Anderson, S.C., fainted and was taken to a hospital. Reports were that she was not seriously ill.

The white youth was identified as Frederick E. Hart, Washington, D.C. He is a University of South Carolina student and a native of Atlanta, Ga.

About 150 white persons watched the demonstrators. There were no violent incidents.

Rebels Expect Freeing of Leaders

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—The Algerian rebel command said Thursday night it expects France soon will make a spectacular goodwill gesture aimed at speeding direct negotiations to end the Algerian rebellion.

The rebels, who Thursday morning accepted French President Charles de Gaulle's bid for peace talks, said they have "strong indications" France will transfer a top rebel leader from prison to a guarded residence near Paris as a gesture of good faith.

He is Ahmed Ben Bella, honorary rebel deputy premier captured by the French in 1956 and imprisoned since on the Island of Aix. Ben Bella holds enormous prestige among the rebels and they have demanded he be included in any peace talks.

Rebel Premier Ferhat Abbas announced acceptance of De Gaulle's bid at a conference in Rabat, Morocco, with King Hassan II of Morocco and President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia.

DOES GETTING UP NIGHTS MAKE YOU FEEL OLD

Thousands are now discovering how much stronger and better they can feel by combining ordinary kidney or bladder irritations. These irritations often occur after 35, and may make you tense and nervous from too frequent, burning or itching urination both day and night. Secondly, you may lose sleep and suffer from headaches, backache and feel old, tired, depressed. In such irritation, CYSTEX usually brings fast, relaxing comfort by curbing irritating urine in strong, acid urine and by giving analgesic pain relief. Safe for young or old. Get CYSTEX at drugstore. 'Trouble I've Seen' Greets Williams

By PETER GROSE

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—A choir of Congolese schoolboys serenaded G. Mennen Williams Thursday with a painstaking rendition of "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen."

After listening a moment to their awkward English, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs threw back his head and joined in the song.

The former Michigan governor and his wife, on a five-day visit to the Congo, visited the American Baptist mission station at Sona Bata, 60 miles south of Leopoldville.

CLAPS TO RHYTHM

In open-necked sport shirt and slacks, Williams clapped to the pounding rhythm of a Bakongo tribal chant as 30 teen-age girls danced around him in a tight circle.

He visited a Congolese family in their grass-covered hut near the village, kneeling down on the dirt floor to talk with beaming, shiny-faced children.

The children understood his excellent French, but had trouble understanding the not-so-good greeting in Lingala that he had carefully memorized.

HIGH SPOT

High spot of the day for his wife Nancy seemed to be discovering that the latest clothes fad among teen-age Congolese girls is not so very unlike what the girls wear in Michigan—blouses with words and slogans written on them.

But here in the Congo, the words are "Kasavubu," "Mobutu," "Independence" and "Bakongo."

Williams plans to cross the Congo River Friday to spend the day in Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo. He leaves Saturday for West Africa.

FCC Seeks 83 Channels For All TVs

Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.
NEW YORK—A major move to expand the television medium on a national basis was taken Thursday by the Federal Communications Commission.

In a step believed without parallel in broadcasting history, the commission announced that it would seek legislation to force manufacturers to equip all new sets to receive Channels 14 through 83 as well as Channels 2 through 13.

The legislation would be designed to compel the manufacturing industry to aid in the development of ultra high frequency television, which up to now has been a failure in many sections of the country.

Without a plentiful supply of UHF sets designed to receive Channels 14 through 83, there has been scant incentive to open new UHF stations and many have closed. And without UHF stations in operation, manufacturers have not seen the economic wisdom of equipping sets to receive channels that were blank. Full utilization of UHF would add 70 channels to the present 13 in the lower range known as very high frequency television.

Word of the commission's plans came in testimony by FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford, before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in Washington.

Speed Integration, Little Rock Told

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Thursday the Little Rock, Ark., School Board must speed up desegregation of the city's schools.

The court held that constitutional rights of Negro pupils had been violated by procedures used in making assignments to various schools under the Arkansas Pupil Placement Act.

ARGUMENTS UPHELD

The appeals court thus upheld arguments by attorneys for 14 Negro pupils who had contended that the board had established "a governmental framework to prevent desegregation."

The appellate court reversed a Sept. 2 ruling by U.S. District Judge John E. Miller of Little Rock, who had ruled that the board was in compliance with the law.

The high court directed Judge Miller to retain jurisdiction, which Miller rejected in his September decision.

MAY BE JUSTIFIED

The appeals court said the previous failure of the school board to make progress toward desegregation might be justified.

Russell Asks 5 Stars for Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday introduced a bill to restore former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's military rank as a general of the Army.

President Kennedy Wednesday wrote to Russell and Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., chairman of the House committee, urging that Congress act to restore the former President's five-star rank. He resigned in 1952 to run for President.

Russell's bill provided that Eisenhower would get the $25,000 annual salary to which he is entitled as an ex-President but not his military retirement pay and allowances.

Pay and allowances for military aides assigned to the former President would be deducted from the $5,000-a-year staff allowance to which the former President also is entitled.

Catholic Prelates to Fight Non-Parochial Aid Bill

By JOHN D. MORRIS

Copyright 1961 by The New York Times Co.

WASHINGTON—The hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States has decided to oppose any school-aid legislation that fails to help children attending Catholic schools.

The cardinals, archbishops and bishops disclosed Thursday that they would press for an amendment to the administration's bill to add provisions for long-term federal loans to private schools.

They took the position that unless some such provisions were included they would fight passage of the measure.

The hierarchy's stand was outlined in a statement by Archbishop Karl J. Alter of Cincinnati, chairman of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

The board consists of the five U.S. cardinals and 10 archbishops and bishops who head departments of the conference. It met here in closed session Wednesday to consider the school-aid issue.

While the meeting was under way, President Kennedy reiterated his opposition to any federal aid to non-public schools. He said at his news conference that it was clearly unconstitutional.

The Catholic prelates contended, however, that loans to parochial and other private schools would be "strictly within the framework of the Constitution."

The Catholic hierarchy has opposed similar legislation in the past after failing to win congressional approval of amendments extending some form of aid to parochial school children.

Kennedy, himself a Catholic, was praised for his stand Thursday by Glenn L. Archer, executive director of Protestants and Others United for Separation of Church and State.

"Mr. Kennedy's fidelity to his campaign pledges on this issue will be appreciated and applauded by all who support our American tradition," Archer said.

He expressed hope that "the American people will support

President Kennedy against the bishops of his church."

The five cardinals and all except two of the other members were present at Wednesday's meeting of the administrative board. The cardinals are Francis Spellman of New York, James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles, Richard Cushing of Boston, Albert Meyer of Chicago and Joseph Ritter of St. Louis.

Papers Report Circulation Rise

NEW YORK (UPI)—Total daily newspaper circulation in the United States has increased by more than a half-million copies over a year ago, Editor & Publisher International Year Book, are for the period ending Sept. 30, 1960.

The trade publication noted also that eight new American dailies were born during the year to disprove what it called the "myth" of the disappearing daily "preached by competing media."

Rebels Get Cheers, Governor the Votes

State Patrol "for bringing in so many of our friends from north and south Georgia" and gas companies for transporting people to the Capitol. He also thanked, on behalf of telephone stockholders, the Capitol staff members who "have spent such a wonderful amount of the taxpayers' money on telephone calls these last few days."

Changing swiftly from sarcasm to a tone of outraged friendship, the Speaker traced his political allegiance from Ernest Vandiver from the administration of Herman Talmadge when he and Rep. Frank Twitty supported Vandiver for lieutenant governor. He said they supported him for lieutenant-governor and, in effect, engineered his nomination for governor with strategy mapped in Smith's hotel room on the rural roads fight of the Marvin Griffin administration.

APPRECIATION

"At that time, gentlemen, not later, the governor of this State was nominated," he said of the rural roads fight, adding bitterly: "I appreciate what the Governor's done for me."

The Speaker touched lightly on pressure allegedly brought by the Governor on members of the House. He said members told him they wanted to vote with him "but I got a couple of roads I got to have paved in my county" . . . "I got a son working for the state" . . . "I got a brother working for the state." He said he told them to "vote your conscience—George Smith is going to vote his conscience."

Twitty, who voted against the bill himself, did not once ask the members to vote against it, but he took the same vein Smith did in tracing his past allegiance to Vandiver and his break with him over the appropriations bill. He said he disagreed with the Governor but planned to act as his floorleader and present his views until the Governor charged the appropriations committee, of which Twitty and Smith were both ex officio members, with "trickery."

GETS SOLACE

"You vote your own conscience," he said. "I've got to live with mine. I often get solace from a little silent prayer. I commend that to you."

Rep. Jack Ray of Warren, chairman of the appropriations committee, got a big hand before and after he spoke and he pleaded urgently with the House to stand by its committee's bill, passed last week.

"Gentlemen of the House, it's ludicrous, we'll be the laughing stock of the state if we depart from the position we have taken," he said. "I've been the Governor's friend and supporter from the first. I've helped him keep his promises. This is one more promise I'm going to help him keep."

Rep. James Mackay of DeKalb made a thoughtful, peaceable pitch for passing the Governor's bill "lock, stock and barrel for one year only" and then setting to work to retrieve "legislative independence" which he said has been lost to the General Assembly for 30 years.

Rep. Wilson Wilkes of Cook County, who served as secretary of the appropriations committee, was the speaker who finished his plea for the House bill by quoting the "go not like a quarry slave" stanza from "Thanatopsis."

WARNS ON PROMISES

Rep. Robert Andrews of Hall, in a fiery denunciation of administrative tactics urged the members not to exchange their votes for "some promises of roads, some jobs, some lakeside lots on the moon." "Gentlemen, let me plead with you, don't sell your votes. Don't let some candidate that hasn't got the chance of a snowball in hell buy you."

Rep. Herchell Lovett of Laurens County said Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd "is trying to be elected Gov."

A Record 50,000 Pills Grabbed In Benz.drine Raid on Farm

Constitution State News Service

WASHINGTON, Ga.—A 43-year-old farmer was arrested after officers reported finding 50,000 benzadrine pills in his house near here.

Deputy U.S. Marshal Ralph Grimes said it was the biggest cache of the illegal drug ever found in Georgia.

The farmer, Emmett Nalley, posted $9,000 bond immediately after being charged with six counts of possession of dangerous drugs and conspiracy. Officers said the pills were in their original manufacturers' cartons.

Nalley was arrested Wednesday by Grimes and an agent of the federal Pure Food and Drug Administration.

error," and he predicted that the Senate bill "will surely defeat him."

As the time passed and members began to miss their supper, seven of 30 persons who had asked to speak in opposition to the bill withdrew their requests. The list was still long.

Few people were the orators on the Governor's side. Rep. Charles Pannell of Murray County acted as floorleader to push the bill through. Rep. Wimbric Walker of Telfair said the House would be "courting disaster, making a tragic mistake to remove from the hands of the Governor" the budgetary powers. And Rep. Pierre Howard of DeKalb made a prediction which an almost full membership of the House, a half-filled gallery and a full complement of reporters and photographers saw fulfilled.

"We're going to stay here, gentlemen, till who laid the rail and pass this bill tonight!"

5 Indicted in $80,000 Fraud Case

A federal grand jury here indicted an Atlanta attorney and four other persons Thursday on charges of using the mails to defraud through a loan negotiating scheme.

Assistant U.S. District Attorney John Stokes said the defendants, operating as Metropolitan Investment Service Corp., 810 Forsyth Bldg., are charged with defrauding more than 100 persons of a total of $80,000 during 1959.

Stokes identified the defendants and their addresses from federal records as Alton T. Milam, attorney, 810 West College Ave., Decatur; Robert B. Kimball, 789 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE; Burr F. Sprague, 2164 Lenox Rd., NE; Benton Atwood, 3501 Roxboro Rd., NE, and Joe F. Dowell Jr., Coral Gables, Fla.

The indictment itself listed 22 persons throughout the South who allegedly were defrauded. They included Groze Murphy of Macon, D. P. Dawson of Savannah and F. M. Massey of Martin. Another alleged victim was Jack D. Roberts, head of a Jackson, Miss., construction company. The indictment accused the defendants of defrauding him of $11,500 he paid in an attempt to negotiate a $500,000 loan.

Stokes said, "They claimed they could arrange for loans anywhere from $5,000 to $500,000, but actually they had no source for the loans. They usually collected fees ranging from $300 to $1,900."

Stokes said one of the defendants, Kimball, pleaded non vult (no contest) to a charge of forgery and four counts of fraud in a New Jersey case in November, 1959, and is now serving a sentence of 3-to-5 years in that state.

Another of the defendants, Sprague, was one of 23 persons

U.S. Okays Bibb Road Project

Macon Work Due On Interstate 75

Federal approval has been stamped on a mammoth interstate highway project in Bibb County which a State Highway Department spokesman described Thursday as "the most important of the interstate projects in Georgia outside of Atlanta."

The Macon-Bibb County connector and bypass, which will likely cost in excess of $50 million to complete, is part of Interstate 75, the important super-free-way which will run from Chattanooga to Atlanta to Florida.

THREE ROUTES

"Outside of the Atlanta projects, this is the most important of the interstate projects in Georgia because three main routes will funnel into the connector," said a Highway department official.

"Interstate 75 will flow into Macon from the north and south," he explained, "and Interstate 16 (Macon to Savannah) will come in from the east."

The way was cleared for rights-of-way acquisition and engineering to proceed on the Macon project when the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads gave final approval to the route's location after a year of controversy and red tape.

AT BRIDGES

The Highway department spokesman said the Bibb project may begin with the $2 million Second Street bridges and approaches in Macon. No estimate was available, however, on how long it will take to complete the entire project.

The Bibb County project was among those referred to earlier this week by Clarke W. Duncan, State Highway Board member, when he said "there has been too much unnecessary red tape in obtaining approval from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads on many of these projects."

About 46 miles of roadwork will be involved in the Macon project, it was estimated.

CATOOSA ENTRY

Interstate 75, when completed, will enter Georgia from Tennessee in Catoosa County and flow out of the state into Florida at the Lowndes-Echols County lines. It will traverse an estimated 367 miles from state line to state line.

About 171 miles of Interstate 75 in Georgia already are under various stages of construction.

Gen. Hall Coming for Base Shift

Lt. Gen. William E. Hall will arrive in Atlanta Monday to mark the official transfer of Headquarters, Continental Air Command, from New York to Georgia.

Lt. Gen. Hall

This transfer from Mitchell Air Force Base, N.Y., to Robins Air Force Base will bring about $8 million annually into Georgia through payrolls and other expenditures.

During his one-day visit to Atlanta, Gen. Hall will be introduced to the Georgia State Legislature at 11:45 a.m. and will hold a press conference at 4 p.m. at the Commerce Club. He will be honored at a reception at 6:30 p.m. at the Capital City Club.

The shift of Headquarters, Con-AC, the Air Force Command responsible for training the nation's Air Force reservists, will involve moving about 550 military personnel and 300 civilians to Robins AFB from New York.

The move, begun last month, will be finished by April 15.

Ian Davidson Is Promoted To General

Ian M. Davidson, Atlanta insurance executive, has been promoted to brigadier general in the Army Reserve.

Gen. Davidson is assistant division commander of the Reserve's 81st (Wildcat) Division with headquarters here. Maj. Gen. Carl T. Sutherland is division commander.

Gen. Davidson is a 1934 graduate of Georgia Tech and is division engineering manager for American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. He served in Alaska and the Pacific Theater during World War II and holds the Legion of Merit medal.

FORMER INDIAN GIRL GUIDE, RIGHT, IS STILL A GOOD SCOUT
Dr. Nalini Tewari, Right, With Atlanta Scouts Nina Holland and Brenda Powell

Doctor, Lawyer and Indian Chief —The Girl Scout Alumnae Have 'Em!

Doctor, lawyer... there's even an Indian chief in the ranks of Girl Scouts alumnae.

Specifically, there's Dr. Mary Katherine Huggins Cabell, professor of mathematics at Georgia Tech; Mrs. Nancy Cheves, attorney on the staff of the Legal Aid Society; and Dr. Nalini Tewari of Bombay, India, instructor of anatomy at Emory University.

GIRL IN GREEN

Dr. Tewari, an obstetrician married to a physician, was a Girl Guide growing up in India. Soon after she came to Atlanta, she returned to scouting, this time teaching the current generation of girls-in-green native Indian dances.

The reminiscing comes with the 50th anniversary of the founding of Girl Scouts in Savannah, Ga., on March 12.

OLD SCOUTS

The formidable career woman line-up of former scouts proves the success of their goal of "turning out a well-balanced person with well-rounded interests," local leaders believe.

Not only do "old scouts" not fade away, they grow brighter every day:

Dr. Cabell started her scouting in Columbia, S.C., and worked up to senior scout. She served as swimming prof at Juliette Low Camp in Cloudland, Ga., one summer.

HOME LIFE

For a career, Dr. Cabell chose intellectual pursuits, the study of mathematics. She earned her Ph.D. in mathematics and became the first woman professor in a masculine stronghold, Georgia Tech.

Dr. Cabell combines a full home life, as wife of Randolph W. Cabell, a Tech graduate and a mathematician with a national business machine firm.

MEMORIES

What are her fondest Scout memories? The "wonderful outdoor life—camping and hiking so important when a girl's growing up," the educator says.

The lawyer in the alumnae ranks, Mrs. Cheves remembers scouting days in Chicago and Louisville, Ky.

"I'll never forget the long hike we took—17 miles or so—and ran out of water. But, like ingenious scouts, we made do with juicy tomatoes," Mrs. Cheves recalls.

She resumed scouting as an adult, teaching dramatics to day campers one summer.

Career-wise, Mrs. Cheves "waited late" to get into law.

"I raised my son and my husband for 19 years before I decided to go back to school," the attractive, dark-haired attorney says.

Just five years ago, she entered John Marshall Law School, passed her exams with flying colors and was admitted to the bar.

"The greatest pitfall of the PTA," groaned an Atlanta mother, "is the perpetual paper sale!"

It's a common complaint among many mothers who are constantly plagued by their offspring to "save that for our paper sale."

"My children resent me using an old newspaper to line the garbage can," an Atlantan declared. "I'm really fed up. Competition between classrooms during these continuous waste paper drives is way out of bounds. Such competition—for a piece of candy as far as the individual child is concerned—is just too much."

PRICES DECREASE

Another homemaker observed "the price of the paper has gone down so it really isn't worthwhile any more."

Does the end justify the means? Why so many fund-raising activities?

"The real purposes of the PTA," pointed out a Georgia chapter president, "are clearly defined in our objects. This includes work in child welfare, parent and family life education, home-school cooperation, and community improvement."

"Money-raising activities," she continued, "should be kept in the background, not allowed to become the primary focal point of PTA work. Some PTA groups do seem to concentrate more on the fund-raising end of it."

An out-of-state PTA leader said that a chapter frequently is subjected to strong pressure to raise money.

ADMINISTRATIVE PRESSURE

"Occasionally this comes from school administrators," she revealed, "usually from those who are not informed about the real purposes and potential value of PTA. More often, pressures come from misguided members or outsiders."

"In any case, pressures should not be the determiners for money-raising projects, but rather what purpose will the project serve toward a fuller realization of the objects of the organization."

A local leader pointed out that some chapters are responsible for "misunderstandings" regarding fund drives, because they ignore the rules of the state and national congresses.

"These people," she declared, "cause undeserved criticism of the PTA as a whole. Most chapters are not guilty of using young people to boost money-making projects."

The Atlantan called attention to fund-raising rules set forth by the National Congress: "Children and youth," she emphasized, "are to be involved ONLY if their part is pleasant and wholesome for them. And ONLY if it doesn't interfere with play, school work and proper rest."

NOT DOING JOB

The fund-raising criteria of the National Congress advises that all projects should be undertaken only for a purpose that furthers the OBJECTS of the organization. They should have educational, social or recreational value.

Projects must conform to policies of "noncommercialism, nonsectarianism and nonpartisanship." They must "be in accord with the best customs and practices of the community."

"Fund drives," a Georgia officer explained, "are carried on within the framework of the National Congress policies. They are NEVER to exploit children, for this is completely inconsistent with our objectives and policies."

The National Congress maintains that "large amounts of money are not necessary for effective parent-teacher work."

NICE THEORY

"That's a nice theory," said an Atlantan who's often worked on PTA carnival committees. "But it's just not practical. Our membership dues add almost nothing to the overall budget."

She explained that PTA's have a regular source of revenue in membership dues. Every association decides for itself what the dues shall be.

One Atlanta group decided to increase its dues from $1 to $5 annually, instead of sponsoring a fund-raising carnival.

"It was a welcome proposal," a member said. "We'd all much rather pay more in dues than have to worry with a carnival."

Many PTA finance committee chairmen report that frequent solicitation of contributions from members is unwise: "It's irritating to most," one asserts, "and may drive away those who can't afford to give, but are embarrassed to refuse requests."

"Besides," observed another, "it puts an emphasis on money that is out of all proportion to its importance in parent-teacher work."

Many PTA workers believe a single annual money-raising project is the best solution. They maintain that one well-planned project "will usually" provide funds to finance the year's activities.

"I don't believe it," scoffed one mother. "That would be just a drop in a big, big bucket. Our chapter is constantly trying to come up with new ideas to raise money for the school."

Her remark brought up another point to ponder: Is the PTA an unnecessary "Santa Claus" to the school?

NEXT: Where does the money go, and why?

The program has been planned by Mrs. Mason Lowance, musico teas chairman. Mrs. Lawrence McEvoy, president of the women's committee of the guild will present plans for the spring activities.

Assisting will be Mrs. Jane Woodruff, Mrs. Edward Merritt, Mrs. Dan Manget, Mrs. William Banks, Mrs. Stanton Therrell, Mrs. Bruce Woodruff, Mrs. Lion G. Mason, Mrs. T. Erwin Schneider and Mrs. Ralph Frederick.

Lemons, Oil Work Wonders

VALENCIA, Spain (WNS)—A drop of lemon, say citrus-fruit experts who have been meeting here in annual conference, can:

1. Remove tea spots from table linens.
2. Remove rust, especially from clothing.
3. Clean a rusty knife or blade.
4. Remove an ink spot from ivory.
5. Polish a calf handbag or belt.
6. Bleach a marble fireplace. Olive dealers who were gathered in another part of town promptly added that with a few drops of oil you can:

1. Clean objects of mother-of-pearl.
2. Remove spots from linoleum.

Spring Is Here

Pink Will Welcome New Season As Fashion's Color Greets the City

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

Take one city night, mix in a general blooming of white and pink flowers, blend with the music of over 150 instruments, frost lavishly with pink fashions and you have a spectacular of pure enchantment.

Such an adventure will be yours to savor this coming Monday when one of the most colorful events conceived by a retailer welcomes the coming of spring. While the emphasis will be on fashion for the feminine contingent of all ages, it will be far more than a fashion show.

A three-hour program of entertainment will be staged in a setting of thousands of flowers, grown especially for the occasion in Houston, Tex.; south Florida, South Carolina and Georgia.

The fashions will underline spring as the season to be romantically pretty at all times. Pink it is for dress, for street, for play under the sun or under the stars. It may be pink pale or pink potent in intensity. It may be all pink, partially pink or touched with pink.

TWO-IN-ONE

Typical of the fashion is the two-in-one sheath. The outer sheath is a sleeveless solid pink linen with one shoulder missing. This buttons down the side under the arm over a pink printed sleeveless silk sheath with the opposite shoulder missing. Worn together clinched with a printed tie sash, the two cover both shoulders.

ders. Worn solo, either will be an example of pink as a seductive color in contrast to sweetness.

SWEET PINK

Pink as sweet as you could want it is the icing on a white cotton dress with a scoop neckline and cuffed at the elbow sleeves. The full skirt is decorated with trellises of pink applique and the sleeves, too, have the same trim. A pink belt of cotton satin closes with a tailored bow in front.

For the flapper who feels a bit of pink is just what is needed to make the 20's theme new for 61, there is the dress of white silk eyelet. The skirt is double tiered, with the hem tier the narrower, dropping from an elongated waist loosely marked with a wide pink sash. A huge pink flower rides in full bloom at the sash.

Pink, the color of a Bermuda beach, lines the butterfly printed beach dress in denim. Fashioned of cotton, it buttons under the arm down the side and is slashed at the hemline like a man's shirt tail. Underneath you are likely to see a swimsuit of pink velvet as a surprise to spring on the beachcombers.

You will be in the pink this spring in any fashion—the evening will convince you.

Respiratory Ills Hit Women Hard

NEW YORK (WNS)—Though women have been renamed the "stronger sex" because they endure more and last longer, evidence is still forthcoming to prove the female the physically weaker member of the species.

Girls get most of the nation's colds and respiratory infections, for example, and suffer the severest cases of flu and pneumonia. Because of this, they are out of action more days per year than men, lose more days of work and school.

This is revealed in a new analysis of all available information on respiratory tract infections. Prepared for physicians by Patterns of Disease, a monthly medical survey, the study shows that more Americans are laid low by colds and related illnesses than by all other acute illnesses combined, including infections, digestive system conditions, fractures and sprains, and wounds and lacerations.

THE MYSTERY

Respiratory infections lose 80,000,000 work days a year and 110,000,000 school days. Yet their cause and cure still remain a medical mystery, according to Patterns.

The common cold, in particular, is today's most important unsolved respiratory problem largely because research has not been able to discover its sources.

However, certain facts may guide future investigations. The National Health Survey has been gathering data on acute and chronic illnesses by questionnaires to households since 1957.

Dividing respiratory infections into those affecting the upper and lower tracts, they found the incidence in both groups consistently higher for women. The "upper" group includes colds, sinusitis, and tonsillitis, while the lower covers influenza, pneumonia and bronchitis.

OFTEN EXPOSED

Researchers theorize that women are the chief victims because they are exposed more often and more intensively to sick people in households.

Respiratory infection is more frequent among large families, and higher in cities than in rural areas. The influenza attack rate, for instance, is about 30 per cent in families of three or less. It jumps to 52 per cent in families of 13 members. A related factor is the family's economic level.

Deaths from pneumonia and influenza are especially high among infants and the aged, with flu especially dangerous to pregnant women. In Minnesota during 1957, a special study disclosed that half of all deaths from Asian flu among women of child-bearing age occurred among those who were pregnant.

Ask Amy Teen-ager Worries Over Dances; She Can Go, But She Can't Dance

DEAR AMY LARKIN: My parents and also my grandparents don't want me to go to dances and dance.

This puts me in a very serious situation. I am 17 and have graduated from high school.

Amy, I love my parents and want to do everything I can to make them happy. But how can I keep from being a wallflower?—WORRIED

Since you live in the country, you could really swing some fine parties. Combine a hot-dog-dig with a hay ride or moonlight hike in the cold. If necessary, tell the boys and girls when you invite them that it will have to be a no-dancing party. They'll accept the rule cheerfully if you do.

She Wants All the Money

DEAR MISS LARKIN: I am a widower possessed of considerable wealth. Recently I have been associated with a widow also regarded as a wealthy person. Neither of us has any children. We have discussed marriage but a difference of opinion has prevented a final decision being reached.

She wants me to convey to her almost all of my financial holdings, saying that this would protect her in the event of my death, I being much older than she.

I am willing to establish a trust fund to guarantee both of us a satisfactory income as long as either lives, but she doesn't agree with me. What do you say we should do, aside from simply calling off our association and each looking elsewhere for a mate?

—WORRIED MAN

Most marriage experts believe in joint ownership of money and property, to save taxes and red tape in the event of death. Since money is mutual in yours and this widow's case, your name should be added to her holdings if her name is added to yours. However, the trust fund is a good idea.

War Bride Needs Money

DEAR AMY LARKIN: I came to this country 15 years ago as a war bride. There is no family to tell my problems to.

I need about $350 for some dental work, and I am unable to pay such money.

But when I came over I brought with me a beautiful pair of evening earrings.

I live in a small town and there is no way to sell them here. My sister-in-law lives in Atlanta, but she doesn't know where to take them. Is there any place?—ALL ALONE.

There are jewelry stores in Atlanta that buy second-hand jewelry or sell it for the owner on a commission basis. Ask your sister-in-law to do some telephoning to various stores.

Perplexed by personal problems? Share them with Atlanta's Amy Larkin. Answers to your letters will appear twice weekly in the Constitution's Women Today section. Just write Amy Larkin, The Atlanta Constitution, P.O. Box 4114, Atlanta 2, Georgia.

Robert S. Booth, 152 Madison Ave., Decatur, died Thursday at his home. He was 69.

Mr. Booth was a retired employee of the Pure Oil Co. He was a member of the Oakhurst Presbyterian Church and the John Rozer Lodge No. 608, F. & A. M., and had lived in Decatur 30 years.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Trinity Chapel. The Rev. Reuben Allen will officiate. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, the former Marie Gray; two sons, R. S. Booth and W. G. Goodson, both of Atlanta; a daughter, Mrs. R. B. Strozer, Atlanta, and a brother, Earnest Booth, Madison.

Mrs. (Maj.) Finnerty

Funeral services for Mrs. (Maj.) Delene Finnerty of the Salvation Army, who died Wednesday in Durham, N.C., will be 11 a.m. Saturday at the graveside in Westview Cemetery. Lt. Col. William Powell, Salvation Army, will officiate.

Mrs. Finnerty lived in Henderson, N.C. She is survived by her husband, Maj. John Finnerty, Salvation Army, and three daughters, Misses Monica, Catherine and Sharon Finnerty, all of Henderson.

MORTUARY

Mrs. MAUD ELIZABETH BARRETT. Funeral services and burial for Mrs. Maud Elizabeth Barrett, 64, of 1421 Lenoir Ave., SW, who died Wednesday, will be Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Friday in Greenwood Cemetery. The Rev. William H. Stender will officiate.

WALTER W. HUMMEL. Graveside services for Walter W. Hummel, 42, of 1135 Dolphin Dr., SW, who died at 2:30 p.m. Friday in Greenwood Cemetery. The Rev. William H. Stender will officiate.

Funeral services and burial will be in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Nancy Evans

Mrs. Nancy Alice Evans, 513 N. Jackson St., College Park, died Thursday in a private hospital. She was 84.

She was a native of Barnesville and was the widow of John W. Evans.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. L. Grant, Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. G. S. Mobley, College Park; two sons, W. A. Evans, Birmingham, Ala., and Paul W. Evans, Tampa, Fla.; and two sisters, Mrs. A. Walker, Atlanta, and Mrs. C. C. Elliot, Birmingham, Ala.

Funeral services and burial will be Friday in Barnesville.

Mrs. John R. Goza

Funeral services for Mrs. John R. Goza, the former Cora Pritchett, who died Wednesday at her residence, 844 Mercer St., SE, will be at 3 p.m. Friday at Trinity Chapel with the Rev. Ralph E. Webb officiating. Burial will be in Decatur Cemetery.

Mrs. Goza, a native of DeKalb County and a long-time Atlanta resident, is survived by a son, Walter E. Goza, and a daughter, Mrs. Jewell Edge, both of Atlanta.

Joseph Raspilair

Joseph Raspilair of Gulfport, Miss., formerly of Atlanta, died Thursday after several weeks illness. He was president of the Plastic & Neon Sign Co.

Mr. Raspilair, 64, lived in Atlanta from 1923 to 1937 when he moved to Gulfport. He was born in Clarksburg, W. Va.

He was a veteran of World War II and a member of the First Baptist Church in Gulfport.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in Lowndes Chapel (Atlanta). The Rev. Dr. Joe Odle, of Jackson, Miss., will officiate. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Cason; two sons, Joseph Raspilair Jr. and Howard Raspilair, Huntsville, Ala.; his mother, Mrs. Claudia Raspilair, Kent, Ohio; and two sisters, Mrs. Emil Shepek and Mrs. W. C. McClain, both of Kent, Ohio.

ably the most acceptable. Without much in spades, the take-out double seems undesirable and the jump to four hearts has the merit of avoiding confusion. North felt that he had sufficient values upon which to base a slam effort, but there were the two losing diamonds staring him in the face. His bid of five hearts was intended to convey to South the impression that the partnership was solid all around except for diamonds. South gave the bid that construction and, with the protection offered by the king of diamonds, contracted for slam.

There is some question as to whether his choice of slams was sound. North's bid of five hearts made it evident that he had two losers in diamonds, which raised the likelihood that a diamond ruff was a menace to South's slam in hearts. The preemptive bid if based on a seven card diamond suit would place West with a singleton. That North has distinct values in spades and clubs can hardly be questioned, so that a no trump slam appears to be a safe venture. South might go all out himself or he might pussyfoot with a bid of five no trump giving North a choice in the matter. North should, of course, select the no trump slam.

West led the deuce of diamonds. East won with the ace and, without the slightest trace of emotion, South dropped the king. To play either the six or the jack would be fatal for West's deuce is too easy to identify as a singleton. The play of the king made it appear that the opening lead had been made from J-6-2 and East returned a spade in what appeared the only chance to beat the slam. Declarer was in and, after drawing trumps, he found a convenient parking place for his losing diamonds on dummy's high clubs.

6 Negro Sit-In Prisoners Again Refuse to Eat

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP)—Six Negro students jailed while awaiting a hearing on anti-trespass charges in a sit-in demonstration refused again Thursday to eat.

The students started their hunger strike Tuesday because they were not allowed textbooks.

They were sentenced to 60 days in jail Feb. 22 on the charges arising from the demonstration in a downtown drug store.

City Deputy Sgt. Peyton C. Johnson, the jailer, said food was placed in front of the students Thursday, but none touched it.

He said the students are not showing any ill effects from their hunger strike. The six are students at Virginia Theological Seminary and College.

GOOD HEALTH: Shingles Is Infection at Nerve Roots

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you explain the skin disease called shingles? What causes it, and what can be done to relieve the intense pain? Does one's diet affect it? Does it really prove fatal when it meets around the waist?—G. E. S.

Shingles isn't exactly a skin disease even though it does show on the skin before it is finished.

Shingles (or Herpes zoster) is a virus infection of the roots of certain nerves. The virus appears to be very similar to the virus that causes chickenpox.

When the virus infects the nerve roots, there is pain—sometimes sharp, sometimes dull, sometimes a burning sensation—in the area the nerve or nerves serve.

Subsequently small vesicles or blisters appear in the skin.

It is quite common for the chest to be affected by shingles. However, it can attack elsewhere: The face (involving the eye-ball) or other places.

In the chest area, where we find shingles so often, it is very unusual for both sides of the chest to be affected. I don't doubt that people, observing this fact, made up the fiction about it being fatal when it meets. It is extremely rare for it ever to meet or go clear around the trunk. Anyway, there's no truth to that story, so forget it.

The disease usually occurs in older persons but diet has no part either as a cause or a treatment. The virus causes it.

There isn't any specific treatment except to ease the pain. Since the degree of pain varies from one case to another so does the choice of medication to allay the pain. Sometimes narcotics are mandatory; in other cases less drastic drugs for the pain are adequate.

There may be a single attack, or there may be recurrent attacks. Eventually the disease wears itself out, but it is often intense for a considerable period and may last for many months after the blisters have disappeared.

In a way, shingles reminds you of colds and other virus diseases. There isn't any specific cure, and you have to wait for the disease to run its course, meantime trying to keep the patient as comfortable as possible.

If a person thought he contracted syphilis would blood tests still show it six or seven weeks later?—B. M.

The blood test turns positive three to five weeks after the disease has been contracted. Therefore your answer is, yes. But remember that other methods have a part in identifying the disease: The individual's history, and physical examination are important. The blood test itself is not simple. It should be performed by a competent physician.

I noticed a bald spot on my head about the size of a dime. My doctor gave me some red pills that seemed to help for a time but the spot is growing and is now bigger than a half dollar.—M. H.

The spreading, single area of baldness suggests a fungus infection of the scalp but, if that cannot be established, you might suspect the hair spray you are using.

It's Time To Plant Hastings' Fruit Trees For Garden-Fresh Fruits

Better flavor, more sugar, less bruising, more vitamins are just a few of the better qualities you will find in "garden-fresh" fruit. Wonderful for the special guest. Possibly the greatest advantage is the pleasure of growing your own fruit and having them superior.

March is an ideal time for setting out fruit trees. Ask one of our experts for help in selecting varieties, planting instructions and information on spraying, pruning and fertilizing. All Hastings' fruit trees are pre-dipped against diseases and insects and marked for proper planting depth.

A Record Turnout

Opening round of the GHSA-Constitution AAA tournament was a glowing testimonial to high school basketball in Georgia. Never before had so many fans turned out at one site to witness the sport.

Mr. Sam Burke, the GHSA generalissimo who has played a major role in the rapid growth of all prep sports in Georgia, was wearing a broad smile as he departed from Alexander Coliseum. He had just heard Mr. George O'Kelly announce an historic box office count. A record 8,500 fans had sat in on the eight-game card. School officials and players, of course, enter on passes, but more than 7,000 customers paid, fracturing all previous prep turnstile marks.

Outlar

Basketball annually draws more paying fans than any other high school sport in Georgia. And in recent years the sport has grown by leaps and bounds. Less than a decade ago, the high schools had difficulty in balancing the budget at the state meet held at the old Sports Arena. Mr. George Biggers, then president of ANI, moved in nine years ago and offered a helping hand.

The Constitution purchased a portable court and opened the doors at City Auditorium. The tournament has been a winner ever since at the gate. Progressive Georgia Tech alumni then erected Alexander Coliseum and the boom which reached a new peak Wednesday was on.

—Sylvan Express Right on Schedule

For the record and the benefit of misinformed critics, competing teams and the GHSA split the loot. Atlanta newspapers, WSB-TV and radio merely handle publicity and attempt to help make the tournament the huge success it now is.

After two days of combat only four teams from the original field of 16 are still in the running. Sylvan Hills, a stout favorite from the outset, is now odds-on to repeat as AAA champ.

Ozzie Wadewitz's men may hit a cold streak and falter, but they deserve the roaring applause accorded them. They lived up their press clippings in the opening game against Richmond Academy, demonstrating in a 29-point second quarter just why they are regarded as one of the finest teams in Georgia history.

Personally, Sylvan has the best prep team I've seen in the state. Wadewitz has the horses, and he knows what to do with them. Sylvan is a superbly drilled team. The Golden Bears know what they are supposed to do, and they do it. Then, too, they are perhaps the best conditioned outfit in the meet. They literally run contenders out of contention.

Balance is an all-important factor in their 38 straight triumphs over Georgia foes. For example, check the scoring column during the second-quarter assault on Richmond. Five players cashed points and the scorers were closely bracketed: Terry Stephens (9), Lee DeFore (8), Virlyn Gaynes (6), Bob Tuggle (2) and Tommy Roberts (2).

—Ability and Class Spell Champs

At the outset Wednesday Sylvan looked like an ordinary outfit, sparring around with Richmond and leading by only three points when the second round started. They then administered the knock-out punch before the startled Richmonds knew what hit them. That has been the story since Sylvan first attracted state-wide attention en route to the title here last year.

As a citizen who has picked more than his share of losers, I am aware that it is quite risky to venture out on a limb in high school basketball. But you're actually not on a limb when you proclaim Sylvan a tremendous team. Even if they fail to retain the crown, Wadewitz's boys must be entered in the books with the best in Georgia basketball annals.

This is being written before Sylvan's Thursday night engagement with a spunky Avondale crew. And there is, of course, a possibility that Sylvan is no longer in the tournament. But I think Sylvan will still be in the meet late Saturday night after 15 foes have been counted out. Smyrna Campbell, which barely squeezed past ambitious North Fulton Thursday afternoon, appears the best bet to oppose Sylvan in the championship showdown. On a hot night Campbell might turn the trick, but Sylvan seems to thrive on pressure. No team ever entered the meet with a heavier load of publicity, but Wadewitz has managed to keep noggins from swelling. These youngsters blend class with ability, a combination which spells champions.

P.S. We have just returned from the Thursday evening session at Alexander Coliseum where Avondale convinced Sylvan and a capacity house that there definitely was one team in the tournament capable of extending the Bears to the hilt. Perhaps there is another. Sylvan had performed like a champion to repulse as determined a bid as you will ever see a group of young athletes make.

Duke Chops Down Virginia, 89-54

ACC Defending Champs Battle S.C. in Semifinals

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Second-seeded Duke opened defense of its Atlantic Coast Conference basketball title Thursday night by methodically cutting down Virginia, 89-54.

The victory for the nationally ninth ranked Duke Devils moved them into the semifinals Friday night against South Carolina, 80-78 upset winner over third seeded North Carolina State.

Maryland, 91-75 victor over Clemson in the first of the three initial round games, meets Wake Forest in the semi-final opener. Top-seeded Wake Forest drew a first round bye.

Duke's winning margin of 35 points was a tournament record. The old mark was 28 points, by Duke also over Virginia in 1954.

Virginia, which had lost twice during the season to Duke, once in overtime, held the Devils 11-all in the first eight minutes, then fell far behind: Duke led at the half 33-20 and more than doubled the score at 63-31 halfway through the last period.

Coach Vic Bubas had all the Duke starters on the bench in the last seven minutes.

Sophomore Art Heyman, who went the first 11 minutes without a basket, wound up high man for Duke with 22 points.

Reserve Flamm was the Virginia leader with 13. Tony Laquintano, the Cavaliers' 20-point a game season leader, scored only eight points, hitting only three of 15 from the floor.

Duke shot at a 49 per cent clip against Virginia's woeful 24 and the Blue Devils grabbed 61 rebounds, 15 by Youngkin.

Scottie Ward, who hit 123 free throws in a row in his Indiana high school senior year two years ago, hit four in the last 72 seconds to enable South Carolina to beat N.C. State.

Injured Jackson To Punt in G-Day Game

ATHENS—Left halfback Billy Jackson will make an appearance in the annual G-Day game Saturday . . . as a punting specialist.

The junior back, a running sensation as a sophomore last year, suffered a shoulder injury on the first day of Georgia's winter practice and has missed drills since that date. However, he will be utilized as a kicker for the White team Saturday, matching boots with Jake Saye of the Reds.

Head Coach Johnny Griffith announced several switches. Roy Betsill went from right guard on the Whites to left guard on the Reds, Jimmy Reese from left half on the Reds to the same post on the Whites and left guard Wiley Stowe from Reds to right guard on Whites.

Saturday's kickoff is 3 p.m. because it is a regular school day.—THOMY

Smyrna and Sylvan Win in Cliffhangers

Warner Robins Edges Murphy

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

The neighborhood cinema won't be able to schedule three cliffhangers as action-packed and dramatic all next year as a whopping crowd of 7,500 (6,000 paid) witnessed in the quarterfinal round of the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored State Class AAA basketball tournament.

Smyrna Campbell put early-arriving citizens on the edge of their seats by sweeping from a 17-point deficit to a spine-tingling, 47-46, triumph over North Fulton on a field goal by substitute Hugh Lee Mann with five seconds left. Then instead of a surprise ending, this dramatic Thursday came up with surprise middle as Coach W. A. Skelton's Grady Grey Knights polished off Columbus High's Imps in easy-does-it, 57-38 style.

Next came Warner Robins and Murphy, trying to outdo Campbell and North Fulton in the thrill department. And they almost did as the lead changed hands on 18 occasions and the score was knotted 10 times before the Demons finished a 47-45 nose ahead on Bob Davis late-game point barrage.

The climax had come too soon for a snappy ending thought the mob as incomparable Sylvan took the floor—they thought—to maul another hapless foe.

But Avondale's upstart Blue Devils, spurred by remarkable 6-7 Freddie Guy, had other ideas and matched the state defending champions basket for basket until near the end before Sylvan raked a 63-56 victory chestnut from the ashes. Big Lee DeFore's 30 points were the deciding items.

All that drama only led to the scheduling of some more like it at the Coliseum Friday night when down-state Warner Robins tries to match Smyrna at 9 o'clock after Sylvan mixes it with City League brother Grady at 7:30.

Winners of those two semifinals' bouts will match baskets for the 1961 state championship Saturday night at 8:30ish after a 7 p.m. third-place playoff.

Jerry Brown and Jimmy Pitts were 15- and 14-point gunners for seemingly beaten Campbell, but subs Mann and Albert Turner (5 in the final quarter) and Rufus Adair were the ones who hit the big ones that brought victory at the tail end.

Even after Mann fired a true 22-foot fielder with five seconds left, little Eddie Dunn—whose two free throws had put North Fulton on top by a point with :13 left—came amazingly close to making it a Buckhead celebration with a "miracle baseball pitch."

Dunn cut loose overhand from three-quarters the length of the coliseum and almost hit. The ball bounced off the right side of the rim at the buzzer.

Tremendous all-round play by 6-6 Don Baxter, who gunned in 23 points, and Harris Hines (13 points), accounted for Columbus' scalp.

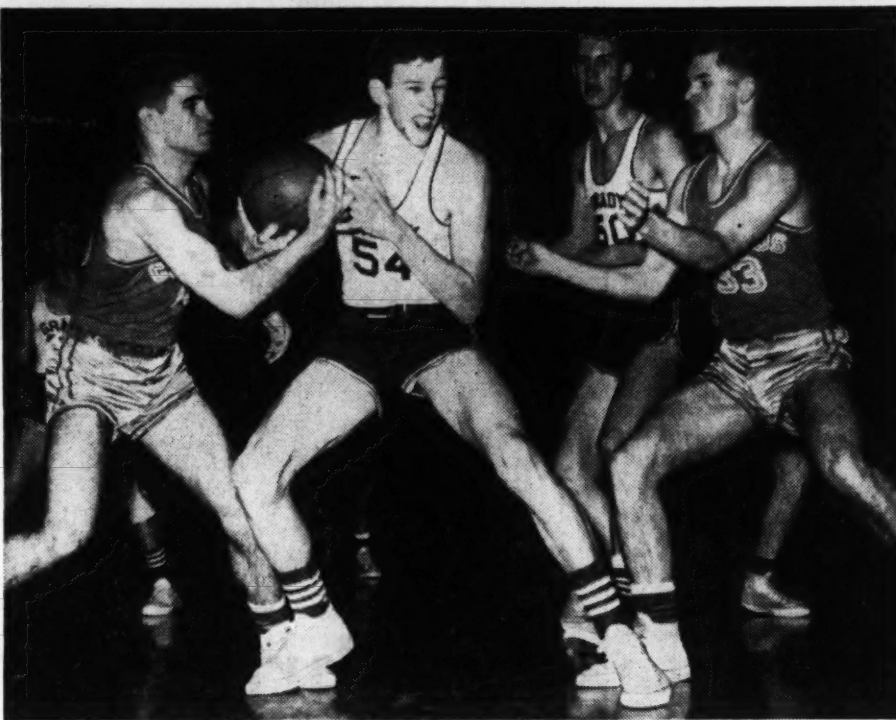

Larry Oswald's Devils tried the pressing tactics that had upended Druid Hills the day before, but brilliant floor play by Hines made it boomerang to the advantage of W. A. Skelton's surprising troops.

With Bobby Cribb hitting in early game to account for 15 points, and Bob Davis smoking the rims down the stretch to run his totals to 15, Warner Robins nipped Murphy at the wire.

But it wasn't easy with David Guthrie pouring in 13 first half points and picking off 14 rebounds for Bennie Davis' Eagles. Weldon Crook and Roy Jarrett, both 10-point producers, made Don LeBlanc's Demons live a hard life near the end—but Davis proved to have the fastest gun in the round house duel.

They'll be talking a long time about the scare Harry Logue's Avondalers gave talented Sylvan as the magnificent Guy out-fought Golden Bears for 22 rebounds and fired 19 points.

SYLVAN and SMYRNA TURN CLICHES INTO TRUISMS

By TOM STODDARD

It was a good night for turning cliches into truisms, but happily for Sylvan's Bears and Smyrna-Campbell, one of them wasn't "You can't win them all."

First, Smyrna's Hugh Lee Mann learned the wisdom of "If at first you can't succeed, try, try again," by sinking a clutch shot at give the Panthers a 47-46 win. Earlier, substitute Mann had missed three straight, from 20, 10 and 5 feet.

Then, Columbus found out that yesterday's hero is today's bum, as the Imps never got started against Grady and wound up a loser, 58-37. Columbus had upset giant Druid Hills with a fine zone press the day before.

Warner Robins' Bob Davis illustrated graphically that you can't keep a good man down, hitting enough points down the stretch to ice a 47-45 win over Murphy. Davis, region 2-AAA's top scorer, was blanketed by the Eagles' David Guthrie during the first half.

Kennedy Talks With Erashovski On Fitness Post

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Forest Erashovski, Iowa athletic director and one-time instructor of hand-to-hand combat during World War II, Thursday said he was very interested in the offer to become physical fitness director for President Kennedy's peace corps.

The robust ex-coach of Iowa's Big Ten and Rose Bowl football champions two years ago said that he had gone to Washington, D.C., recently and conferred with R. Sargent Shriver, Kennedy's brother-in-law who will be director of the peace corps.

Lucas Lauds Teammates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Poker-faced Jerry Lucas, Ohio State's all-America and Olympic basketball star who was named Thursday as the collegiate cager of 1961, wears his laurels well.

Most youngsters drawing such nationwide praise for their prowess would have their heads in the clouds. Jerry has his feet on the ground.

When he learned he had been named to the All-America for the second straight season, with the added accolade of "Player of the Year," the 6-8 Buckeye junior from Middletown, Ohio, said:

"No player can win all that without a lot of help. The Ohio team has won 22 in a row, and that's no one-man feat. Maybe they picked me for All-America because I'm the tallest on the team, because when it comes to playing, the other fellows deserve All-America as much as I do."

Petrels Host to Tough Tampa As NAIA Meet Opens Tonight

By TED SIMMONS

It'll be Stetson vs. Mercer and Oglethorpe vs. Tampa in the NAIA 25th District playoffs at the Oglethorpe Field House Friday night.

Strong Stetson plays Mercer at 7:00. Oglethorpe takes on Tampa at 9. The winners meet at 8 p.m. Saturday for the District championship and a berth in the National Playoffs at Kansas City March 13-18.

On the basis of regular season performances, it looks as if Stetson carries a slight edge into the District shooting. The Hatters are 19-6 for the season, including a 76-68 victory over Miami, Fla., and a 44-39 win over Oglethorpe on the Petrels home court.

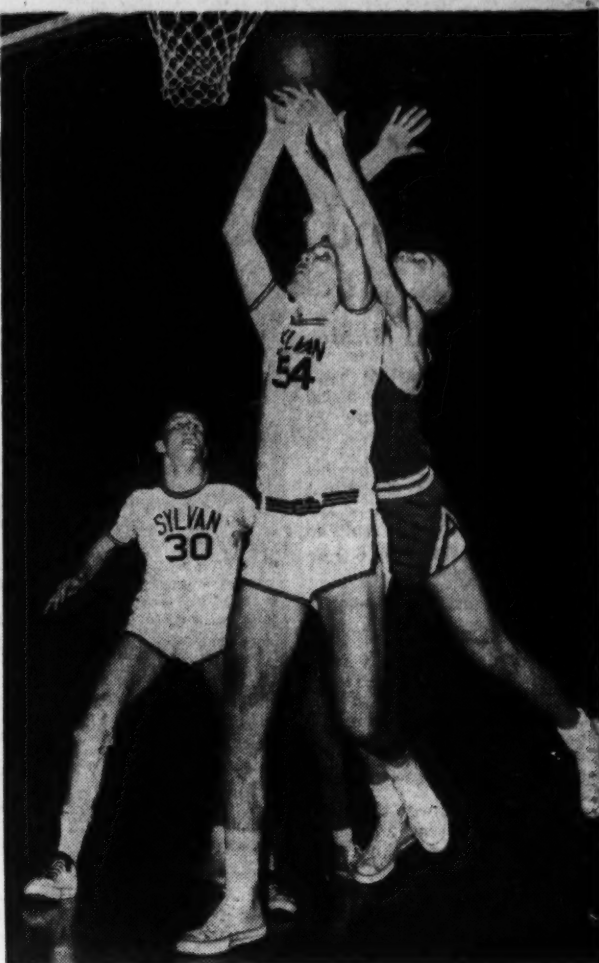

Oglethorpe, however, was at less than full strength for that encounter. Center Morris Mitchell was not quite recovered from an attack of virus, and guard Tommy Norwood sat out most of the game with a sprained ankle.

Although still ailing, the Petrels will be stronger for Friday night's tip off. The only two trouble spots are Bobby Nance, 6-4 forward, who's recovering from a virus, and Roger Couch, 6-2 senior front court man who has a deep cut on his left hand. Both are expected to play.

Tampa, Oglethorpe's first opponent, has won just 10 games in 25 starts. But Coach Bob Lavy's crew has faced more than its Tommy Roberts, Terry Stephens, Virlyn Gaynes and Bob Tuggle—who abetted DeFore's 30 points with 13, 10, 7 and 3 of their own—played every minute without rest.

But this was a night for "iron men." Avondale's Guy Martin, Ed Pritchett, Jimmy Cotton and Ben Hargrove turned the trick, too—Guy playing 3 quarters with 3 fouls against him.

Sylvan hit 48.2 per cent of its shots (27 for 56). Avondale 42.3 per cent (22 for 52) and rebounding was about even.

Bonus babies may get a big break with the Cleveland Indians this year.

Manager Jimmy Dykes has his eye on a couple of exceptional prospects—outfielder Ty Cline and pitcher Sam McDowell. And the camp is swarming with a host of other youngsters.

Cline, a Clemson College star, was signed for about $40,000 and hit .311 with Mobile last year. He finished the season with the Indians and hit .308 in seven games.

Citrus Circuit

Cline could stick with the Tribe because of the absence of Walter Bond, now in the army, who may not get in for spring training.

McDowell, a stringbean left-hander, has been ordered to drink extra milk to build up his weight. Signed for a bonus of about $75,000 last summer, he's 6-5, and weighs only 178.

AROUND THE CAMPS—The Chicago Cubs' big righthander, Don Cardwell, who threw a no-hitter in his debut with the Cubs last summer says "Every time I go out and try to pitch I try to get a no-hitter. But everything must fall just right." . . . Chicago White Sox lefty Herb Score said "this at the Sox' Sarasota camp: 'Everybody wants to give me an alibi. But now it is up to me. Mental problem? I have none. Physical problem? I have none. I have been a lousy pitcher and I know it. I want to live up to all the nice things Al Lopez and his coaches have done for me."

. . . Juan Pizarro, whose truncheon for three days had been unexplained by the Chisox, finally joined drills. . . . Kansas City A's power-hitters showed well, hitting a dozen or more balls out in camp at West Palm Beach.

MILWAUKEE'S Frank Bolling says that the deal which brought him from Detroit and prompted General Manager John McHale to say the Braves would have "the best infield in baseball" has put both him and the boss on the spot, especially since he was traded for popular outfielder Billy Bruton. . . . Frank Frisch, former gas-house gang member, visited the St. Louis Cardinals in St. Petersburg, and kidded the team members about the quietness of the clubhouse. "Spring training now is like a country club membership without dues," he said.

. . . A double by Bob Skinner and Rocky Nelson's single earned the Red Northey's a 4-3 victory over the Frank Oseaks in the Pittsburgh Pirates first intrasquad game at Fort Myers. . . . Walker Cooper, 46-year-old baseball veteran of 21 years in the majors, has been named manager of the Dallas-Fort Rangers of the American Association.

BIG Don Newcombe faced the minimum six batters in a two-inning intra-squad stint as he continued a comeback attempt with the Los Angeles Dodgers, and drew praise from Manager Walter Alston. . . . Georges Maranda arrived in camp bring San Francisco's spring roster to 42—a full house. . . . Outfielder Bob Cerv cracked out three hits to lead a team managed by Coach Red Kress to a 9-5 intra-squad victory at the Angels camp. . . . The Washington Senators signed 21-year-old first baseman Dave Parnham for their Pensacola farm team and added three scouts, Charley Silvera, Bennie Oates and Johnny Caruso.

Dixie Steel Rips Carlings Squad

Dixie Steel defeated Carlings Brewery, 67-31, in the first round of the Atlanta City Recreation tournament at Brown High Wednesday night. Farrell Farr scored 22 for the winners, and Bob Keenum racked up six for the losers. Dixie Steel meets Druid Hills Presbyterian at 8:45 p.m. Thursday.

Tampa will be without the services of two regular starters. Freshman guard George Shary, who averaged 17 points a game, did not make the trip to Atlanta, and Marlin Clark, an 11-point per game forward, is out with a pulled stomach muscle.

The big man for Tampa is Don Boyt, a 6-8 sophomore from Thomaston. Boyt sat out much of the season with a broken wrist. His return, according to Lavy, gave the team a big boost.

SAME OLD STORY—TED, SCRIBES FEUD

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Ted Williams' 20-year feud with sports writers flared up again Thursday scant minutes after his arrival at the Boston Red Sox camp despite the fact the slugger has switched from outfielder to batting instructor.

The American League bat master who retired after smashing his 521st home run last fall had a fiery exchange of words with Larry Claflin of the Boston American. He also called down Harold Rosenthal of the New York Herald Tribune.

Williams stormed after Claflin, accosted him with clenched fist and told him: "I'll punch your nose off. . . ." Bystanders were able to break up the near-fight only after bitter words were exchanged.

Williams, whose actual title in the Red Sox hierarchy is executive assistant later told reporters that the Boston writer had called up Ted's former wife around Christmas time and asked her what he had given their daughter for Christmas.

Claflin flatly denied ever having made the call and said Williams had never made the charge to him directly, even during Thursday's exchange.

Throughout his stormy career as a player, Williams refused to have his private life or family brought into press interviews. Williams fumed at Rosenthal over something the latter had written five years ago. There was no detail as to what the content of the article might have been.

Again, like the Williams of old, Ted turned off the wrath as quickly as he had turned it loose, becoming extremely gracious during a news conference.

Ted said he will work for the Sox organization as a scout, batting coach and trouble shooter for young players who may need help.

TD CLUBBERS HONOR BUTTS AND GRIFFITH

ATHENS—Outgoing Coach Wally Butts and incoming Johnny Griffith will be guests of honor for the annual Athens Touchdown Club Jamboree here Friday night at the Moira Michael Auditorium.

Three awards are scheduled for presentation. Right halfback Bill McKenny, alternate captain of the 1961 University of Georgia team, will get the first annual Wally Butts trophy for his "competitive spirit."

Guard Pat Dye and quarterback Francis Tarkenton, both all-America selections, will accept the W. K. Jenkins Awards as "best lineman" and "best back" of the 1960 Georgia season. E. Whitaker is scheduled to make these presentations.

The Touchdown Club, of which Julius Bishop is president, has two other awards it plans to make Friday night. Their nature has been kept somewhat of a secret.

Ex-Bulldog Bill Hartman is emcee for the program, and humorist Dode Phillips of South Carolina is featured entertainer.

Several college coaches of the area are expected to attend.

Festivities begin at 6 o'clock.—THOMY

U.S. Ties Up Ingo's Purse Until March 17

From Press Dispatches
The federal government Thursday tied up Ingemar Johansson's March 13 heavyweight title fight proceeds—perhaps belatedly—to March 17 pending efforts to learn the amount and whereabouts of Johansson funds available to satisfy a $908,000 income tax claim.

John J. McCarthy, counsel for the Internal Revenue Service, told a federal judge that $250,000 already has been paid and apparently this has been transferred to Switzerland.

He did not elaborate as to what the money represented or who paid it.

"Perhaps this suit is a little too late to attach certain sums," McCarthy went on. "Internal Revenue agents have been unable to ascertain financial arrangements made with Johansson by Feature Sports, Inc."

A temporary restraining order on Johansson's income from his prospective Miami Beach bout with champion Floyd Patterson was extended to March 17.

MORE BOXING—Feature Sports Inc. has rejected an offer to buy up all remaining seats for the Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight at a 50 per cent discount. . . . Sugar Ray Robinson, who rarely talks about what might happen if he loses, conceded that he may retire if he is badly beaten by Gene Fullmer Saturday night. . . . Heavyweight contender Alex Mihoff of Argentina has signed to meet Alonzo Johnson of Rankin, Pa., in a return 10-round fight at St. Nicholas Arena next Monday night. . . . Pene Kingpetch, Thailand's world flyweight boxing champion, outpointed Jose Luis Martinez of Spain in a non-title 10-round fight.

RACING—The biggest daily double of the meeting, and the second highest of the Miami winter racing season, was registered at Hialeah when Space Craft and Running Acres combined for a $2,159.20 for $2 payoff. . . . Fourteen 3-year-olds were entered in the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby Saturday. . . . Maurice Shevlin, turf editor of the Chicago Tribune, assumed the presidency of the National Turf Writers Association.

BASKETBALL—Tom Hein-son of the Boston Celtics says National Basketball Association president Maurice Podoloff is giving out with a lot of double talk in dealings with a proposed pension plan. . . . Duquesne's basketball team is being considered for the last open berth in the National Invitation Tournament. . . . Tech's Roger Kaiser, Mississippi State's Jerry Graves, Florida's Lou Merchant, and Vandy's Bill Depp received unanimous approval on the 1961 all-Southeastern Conference team named by Commissioner Bernal Moore.

MISCELLANY—Host Michigan goes hunting for its first Big Ten gymnastics title at Ann Arbor and is a slender favorite to get it. Michigan will greet 80 competitors from seven schools.

Promoter Says Cabro Tried To 'Muscle in'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Fight promoter Jackie Leonard testified Thursday underworld boxing czar Frankie Carbo threatened to kill him if he did not go along with a scheme to "muscle in" on former world welterweight champ Don Jordan.

He said Carbo, 56, threatened to gouge his eyes out.

Leonard, who previously claimed he was beaten and knocked unconscious outside his home in a June 1959 incident, also charged Carbo and Frank (Blinky) Palermo demanded 50 per cent of Jordan to assure a shot at the championship.

Gator Rips SEC Mark In Medley

ATHENS—Florida's Eddie Reese, sophomore of Daytona Beach, Fla., shattered the SEC meet record in the 200-yard individual medley here Thursday as the 20th annual conference championships began.

He set the record of 2:13.6 in the afternoon trials, slightly better than his winning time of 2:14.3 in the night finals. The old mark was 2:17.3 by Phil Drake of Florida, set in 1957.

The Gators' Terry Green, another soph of Miami, won the 1,500-meter freestyle in 20:08.5, just off the meet mark of 20:05.5 set in 1958 by Dave Calkin of Florida.

Thus the highly favored Gators moved into a commanding lead at the end of two events, with 14 remaining, seven Friday and seven Saturday. They have 22 points, followed by Georgia Tech, 12; Alabama, 4; Georgia, 3; Kentucky, 3; Vanderbilt, 0; and Tulane, 0.

Friday's trials get underway at 2:30 p.m. with finals at 7:30 p.m. Saturday's trials start at 9:30 a.m. with finals at 1 p.m., which will be completed in time for swimmers and fans to see Georgia's G-Day football game.

THURSDAY'S SUMMARY
200-Yd. Individual Medley: 1—Reese, Florida, 2:13.6; 2—Cullen, Florida, 2:17.0; 3—Enderica, Ga. Tech, 2:36.0; 4—Sheridan, Florida, 2:37.1; 5—Harris, Ga. Tech, 2:37.3; 6—Butler, Georgia, 2:34.8. (Reese set record of 2:13.6 in afternoon trials).

Valley Point Stuns Statesboro, 76-71

Winder Barrow Boys Win; Brooks Co. Girls Advance

MACON —Valley Point's boys stunned favored Statesboro, 76-71, in overtime here Thursday night in the opening round of the State Class A basketball tournament.

Sparked by the 33-point performance of center Charles Carmichael, the Valley Pointers fought Statesboro to a 71-71 deadlock in the regulation game, then pitched a five-point shutout in the overtime.

In other boys games Thursday, Americus breezed past Commerce, 71-39; Dublin trounced Berry, 65-37; and Winder-Barrow beat Jeff Davis, 70-53.

In opening round girls games, Brooks County defeated Central Gwinnett, 51-30; Jeff Davis beat South Habersham, 62-39; Swainsboro toppled Cartersville, 46-27; and Cochran turned back Rockmart, 43-40.

The Valley Point victory was the shocker. Statesboro had lost only three games during the regular season.

Brooks County rolled to victory behind the 37-point show of spectacular Linda Martin. It was the 33rd straight win without defeat for Brooks County.

Bob and Dan Reeves scored 20 and 19 points respectively to pace Americus to its easy win.

Cochran had to struggle before getting away from surprising Rockmart, which had lost 13 regular season games. Scoring ace Peggy Padgett was held to just seven points, but Joy Horne and Dale Kingery scored 19 and 17 respectively to take up the slack.

Benedict, Clark Clash In NAIA

By SAMUEL SCOTT

Benedict College of Columbia, S.C., SIAC Tournament basketball champions, will get the NAIA District 6-A play-offs underway when they pair off with Clark College of Atlanta in the Morehouse College gym at 7:30 Friday night. Immediately following this contest Savannah State College, tournament champs from the SEAC, will tie up with Morris Brown in a game which can go either way.

The winner of this meet will represent District 6-A in the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association Championships at Kansas City along with 32 other competing district champions from over the U.S. Savannah State, defending NAIA District 6-A champs, posted a 27 and 4 record during the 1959-1960 campaign and now boast a 24 and 6 mark.

Co-sponsors of the District Meet are NAIA District 6-A and the Extra Point Club of Atlanta.

Man of Distinction

North Fulton led the Panthers at every quarter stop, 12-10, 24-17 and 39-38. And the Smyrna climb back to victory on Mann's big fielder, after being down 17 points once and from 12 to 14 often, was a tremendous achievement against a team with talented rebounders like 6-6 Bruce Bennett and 6-5 Johnny Cash.

Three fielders by Jerry Brown and one each by Beckett and Pitts cut the Buckheaders' edge to 42-41 with 3:08 to go. Then it was anybody's game, and remained so.

Bobby Plunkett hit a fielder for the Bulldogs, but Rufus Adair got the lead back (45-44) for Smyrna with two pressure-packed charity tosses at the 1:11 mark. Then, at :16, Pitts fouled out and Dunn pitched in two free ones to put NF on top, 46-45. But then came Mann to pull it out.

Skin-Tight Fit

Warner Robins and Murphy played it fantastically close all the way, the lead changing hands 18 times and the score being tied on 10 occasions. Davis, getting hot, hit two baskets to net Warner Robins a 38-37 lead in the fourth quarter. Murphy never got even again, but it was vest-light down to the final buzzer.

Murphy, with Guthrie making 14 claims, outscored the Demons, 36-31, but the Robins hit 19 of 45 shots, 45 per cent to Murphy's 21 for 63 or 34 per cent.

The Demons led at the quarter, 12-10, but trailed 24-22 and 35-34 at the next two stops. Cribb picked off 12 rebounds and gunned in 13 first-half shots, giving Davis time to seal matters later.

But all that wasn't enough to head off Sylvan. Because Bob Tugle hit a bucket with 4:07 left, putting the Bears on top by 55-50 and affording them the luxury of going into a freeze to preserve victory.

At the 2:54 point, Jimmy Cotten cut the margin to 56-52 with a fielder. But DeFore, Roberts, Stephens and DeFore again hit points from there out, and a fielder each by Ben Hagrove and Guy was all the Devils managed.

Kaiser Sees Georgia Cagers Getting Better Every Year

Notes Change At Tourney

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Roger Kaiser, who was given a "Night" Monday by the Greater Atlanta Georgia Tech Club, believes a new day is dawning for Georgia high school basketball.

The Dale, Ind., sharpshooter, called Tech's greatest athlete of all-time by Athletic Director Bobby Dodd, believes the hardwood sport has progressed tremendously even in the four years he has been rewriting the record books at the Flats.

Kaiser, an interested spectator at the last four Constitution-sponsored GHSA state tournaments, was asked to make a comparison of the game as played in Georgia and that basketball hotbed this is his native Indiana.

"Basketball is definitely on the way up in Georgia; I feel certain of that after watching the tournament in the Coliseum since I've been at Tech," said the Hoosier Hotshot.

"There are a lot more good players here now than there were a few years ago. It's natural that not as many good players come out of Georgia as Indiana, because they have something over 700 teams up home. (Georgia has roughly 400 boys' teams).

"Too, it's cold up there more of the year, and the boys will just naturally play more basketball. They start younger and play more after they start.

"High schools, as a rule, play a more wide open game in Indiana. They run and shoot more. In Georgia, there are more defense-minded coaches. Otherwise, strategy and coaching techniques seem to be about the same."

KAISER (L) LOOKS AT GEORGIA BASKETBALL
With Constitution Prep Editor Charlie Roberts

The All-American cager, who has scored a Tech record 1,607 points in 79 games—587 in 25 outings this season, was asked why graduates of Indiana schools usually out-strip Georgia products when they play in college.

It was pointed out to him (for example's sake) that Wayne Richards, his Tech teammate, and University of Georgia's Don Keiser were the two standouts in The Constitution's 1957 tournament for Richmond Academy and Decatur—yet are just average college players.

"I believe Indiana boys have been grounded better in the fundamentals," he said with no intention of reflecting on the caliber of coaching in Georgia.

"This is because—as I mentioned—that Indiana boys start playing sooner and play more. And they start playing under a coach sooner."

Asked if he believes the Indiana system of letting schools of all classifications play for a single state championship is better than Georgia's "a champion in every class" plan, Kaiser shrugged:

"Well, I don't know that it makes much difference. But I do believe it gives players from smaller schools a chance to improve by playing against stronger competition."

"Georgia basketball is really improving, though. I'm sure of that," by playing against stronger competition.

THREE ATLANTANS TRY MARYLAND DUCKPINS

Three Atlantans, Billy Allen, Rollo Moore and Evelyn Traber, shoot for the BPAA Duckpin Match Game championships this weekend at Baltimore, Md.

Allen and Moore finished 1-2 in the area rollofs late in January with averages of 129 and 128 for 15 games.

The tournament qualifying runs Saturday and Sunday, with the finals on the Petersen point system Monday and Tuesday.

NOTES: Better than 40 Atlanta teams are entered in the Southern Bowling Congress Tournament Saturday and Sunday at Broadview and Doraville Bowl-O-Matics. . . . Three big teams, Bowl-O-Mat of Macon, W. A. Belcher Lumber Co. of Birmingham, Ala., and Dixie Tobacco of Macon, carry the large averages of out-of-city squads, with 944, 931 and 925. Bob Nystrom, Southern all-events and singles champion, heads the Bowl-O-Mat squad with a 194 average; Bob Neff and Willie Walton pace Belcher's with 196; and Don Ramsey carries a 192 average for Dixie. . . . Karl Bartholomew and Ralph Ujaki popped out the key series Wednesday night in the Briarcliff Classic with series of 697 (219-233-254) and 651 (201-202-248). —ATKINSON

Russians Riddle U.S.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—A sharp-shooting, hard-checking Russian team overpowered the flustered and battered United States' defending champion 13-2 Thursday before a crowd of 13,500 in the first round of the world ice hockey championships.

The Russian sextet scored five goals in each of the first two periods in coasting to victory. The United States averted a shutout with a pair of goals in the third period.

The United States won the Olympic and world championship last winter at Squaw Valley, Calif. Only three members of that squad played in Thursday's game against the Russians.

Dave Frank of International Falls, Minn., and Larry Cronkhite, former Minnesota high school and collegiate standout, missed the opener because of the flu.

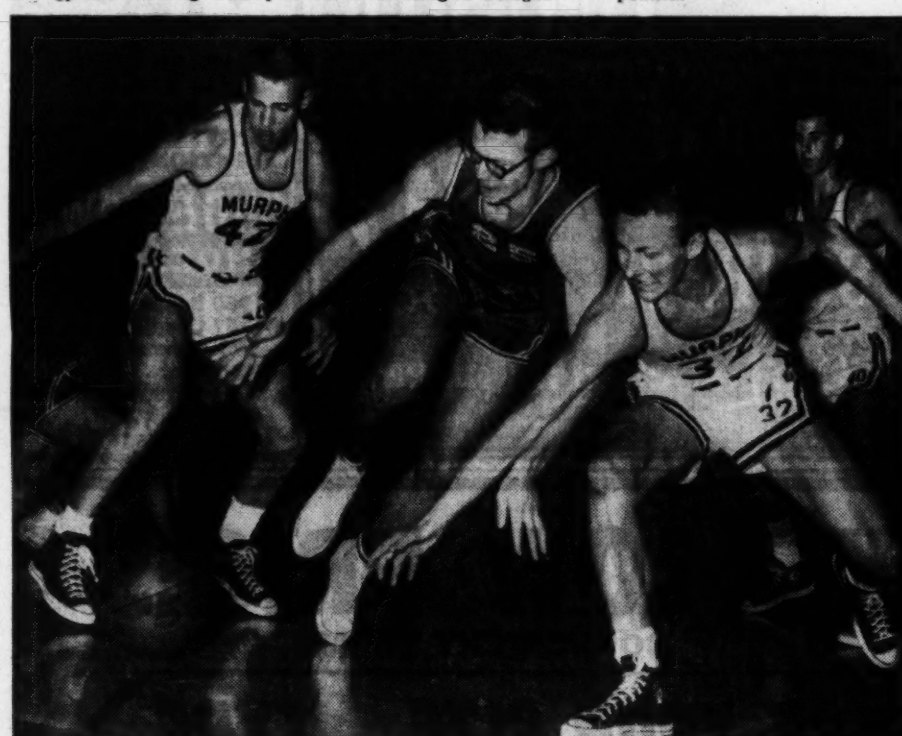

In other first round matches played in Geneva, Canada, co-favorite with Russia to win the championship, turned back Sweden 6-1 and Czechoslovakia outclassed Finland 6-0.

Finally, Sylvan proved that it takes a great team to beat a great team, and that that doesn't always work. Outrebounded by Avondale, 39-30, and out shot from the field, 48 per cent to 42.3 per cent, the Bears' advanced to the semifinals with a 63-56 win.

Sylvan, proclaimed quite properly "better than the average Bear" by a cheering section sign, thus kept its undefeated string against Georgia teams intact, as did Smyrna. And the two teams' wins increased the likelihood of what some people have been predicting all along—Sylvan vs. Smyrna in the finals.

Avondale's Harry Logue, who received congratulations from everywhere on his teams' fine showing, figured the loss to Sylvan this way: "If you're gonna lose, it's best to lose to the best."

HERE AND THERE—The zone press, credited with bringing wins to Columbus in the opening round and to Smyrna-Campbell in the quarterfinals, came to an ignominious bringdown when Columbus tried it against Grady's surprising Knights. Grady's guards, Harris Hines and George Chotas, maneuvered around it enough, and accurate long passes helped the Knight cause.

"We had played the press ourselves," said coach W. A. Skelton, "so it wasn't new to us. We worked on it some in the afternoon, just walking, not running. We knew we had to get the ball past half court, and keep it out of the corners. If they get you in a corner, they'll double up on you, and that's it."

The demise of the much-talked-of Columbus zone brought Russell coach Charlie Aldridge to say

"Columbus was the Morning Glory Imps. They only bloomed once."

QUOTES FROM AROUND—Bill Bennett of Smyrna—"After this game, everybody in the stands should go back outside, and pay another dollar. They got their money's worth."

Larry Oswald of Columbus—"Grady played a fine game. They had planned well, and they carried it out, playing control ball and using their height. They beat us soundly, as soundly as anyone has this year. It's hard to beat that height night after night."

Skelton of Grady—"This is the first time we've score since the city tournament. We hadn't broken."

Don LaBlanc of Warner Robins—"Our plays weren't working. We were getting jammed up the middle. Murphy did a real good job on defense, and we were glad they went into a zone late. After that Davis got loose some."

Bennie Davis of Murphy—"The difference was under the boards. They got 14 offensive rebounds, and I bet they got seven field goals out of them."

Ozzie Wadewitz of Sylvan—"I don't jump around, but I'm pretty nervous before the game. I'm nervous now. I don't know why but I am."

Cadets Clip Richmond

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Citadel's three-seeded Cadets rode the torrid shooting of Gary Daniels and Dick Jones to a 70-66 opening-round victory over Richmond Thursday and advanced with William and Mary into the semifinals of the Southern Conference basketball tournament.

As I See It The Fan Magazines Finally Got Smart

By PAUL JONES

Remember how the fan magazines used to do the cover stories about the perfect Hollywood marriages and how the stars featured in these articles frequently would gum up the works—by hurrying off to Reno or Tijuana, Mexico, for a hasty divorce before the magazines reached the stands?

The yarns about marital bliss in a city which has the highest divorce rate in the country frequently resembled something an enterprising press agent might have cooked up.

In some instances I'm sure happiness prevailed at press time but—well, you know how those things happen in Hollywood.

The magazines long ago grew suspicious of that marital folklore and you don't see much of it any more.

But if you are a TV devotee and watch reruns of such things as the I Love Lucy series you might have heard such "happy couples" as Esther Williams and Ben Gage, Dick Powell and June Allyson and Michael Wilding and Elizabeth Taylor mentioned in some recent episodes.

I suppose whoever edits these re-runs has spotted these boobies because Liz and Michael reached a parting of the ways years ago. Esther and Ben paddled off in different directions before she stopped making the aquacades for MGM and June and Dick have been having their private quarrels, details of which are all too familiar to readers of the morning paper.

Whenever I run across one of the old situation comedy half-hours which refer to the "happy couples" I always get an extra chuckle.

TRYING TO BE BLASE I'm sure some of us become too critical of TV. I'm a fan. I like some of it and I don't mind saying so.

Renata Tebaldi, who sings for the Met, watches television—every chance she gets.

"I like to watch TV very much," the singer said in speaking to reporters the other day. "During the season I don't go out evenings, unless I am singing, so I watch every night."

"I watch Dinah Shore and Perry Como, Garry Moore and Ed Sullivan. I like many popular singers. Dinah is one. I like her style. And Nat Cole and Paul Anka, and that young boy—what's his name—Fabiani?"

"Movies, Westerns, the Price Is Right, I like them all. I watch everything and like everything."

"Every evening I go down the listings and I think 'this show, yes, this show no.'"

And I think this thing has gone far enough.

Miss Tebaldi incidentally, will be featured on the Telephone Hour colorcast at 9 p.m. Friday along with that folk singer—what's his name—Burl Ives?

TWISTING THE DIAL—They needed an actor to portray a seven-foot, two-inch giant in the March 9 episode of Bat Master. Mickey Morton, who's actually 7'3", applied. "I got the part anyway," he commented later, "because when I went to see the casting director I slouched."

Purex has run into a problem trying to find an actress to play the lead in its next special, "The Problem of the Middle-Aged Woman." It seems there's no such thing as a middle-aged actress. . . . Candid Camera has a howlingly funny sequence in the Sunday show. Vivian Vance portrays a carhop who delivers hamburgers on buns without the hamburger.

She accuses the patrons of slipping the meat into their handbags or pockets. . . . Charles Laughton, commenting on celebrity-capers: "Elsa (Lanchester) and I love to sit in a restaurant watching people watching us."

Louis Armstrong, recalling a Japanese tour: "We hit the island provinces and our guide started to discuss politics with me. 'You like Harry Truman?' he asked. 'Why not,' I answered, 'he's a piano player, ain't he?'"

Dianne Lennon, one-time member of the Lawrence Welk organization, is now married to a cable splicer for the telephone company. In a Photoplay article she says her hubby, Dick Gass, likes "tacos and enchiladas."

Scouting TV Tonight Artists To Present World Music Tour

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—The Bell Telephone Hour has a slim theme to tie its music together.

The idea is to tour the world musically, with stops in Spain, London, Rome, Paris and the American countryside. In Spain we'll have some flamenco dancing and singing from, respectively, The Roberto Inglesias Ballet and Los Chavales de Espana. In London we'll meet Gracie Fields and Stanley Holloway, as a pair of cockneys wandering the streets.

Gracie Fields

Against a background of pictures, they'll come across London landmarks which will remind them of songs.

The Rome and Paris segments belong to Renata Tebaldi, who will sing arias from "Tosca" and the little-known opera, "Adriana Lecouvreur."

These will be performed in costume, against the background of the largest scenic drops the program has used all year. Finally, in a Grant Wood type setting, Burl Ives and the singers and dancers will work their way through a series of folk songs, including two which Ives recently discovered — "I Walk the Line" and "Lenora." 9-10 (Ch. 2).

8-8:30 (Ch. 11) — Thanks to the work of Ben Blue, Harrigan & Son has a gay outing this week. Blue is seen as an old comic, feuding with his son over rights to some comedy material which isn't worth the trouble. The act is as corny as an Iowa silo right after the harvest, and it's this extreme corniness that makes it funny. Bert Conny turns in a good performance as the son.

8:30-9 (Ch. 2) — The Nanette Fabray Show starts slowly, with Miss Fabray's mugging the chief claim to fame, but closes with a funny scene. The idea here is that Nan is a guest star on a TV show, doing a favor for a friend. Her appearance is a success, and there seems to be evidence that she's thinking of re-summing her career. So her family decides they have to compete with show business for her attention, and it's this scene that makes the program worth watching.

8:30-9:30 (Ch. 5) — Route 66 blows into the Los Angeles Freeway and Buz and Tod (George Maharis and Martin Milner) meet up with a tragic figure. Tod, as a birthday present, gets a set of dancing lessons. His instructress is a blind girl (Martha Hyer) whose husband was killed in a gas station hold-up. Her only thought is revenge, and she gets her chance in a good scene where she has the killers at her mercy. Her guide dog is one of the Rin Tin Tins—a seventh generation Rin.

10-10:30 (Ch. 11) — Robert Taylor in The Detectives has a better one this week than it has

List Booms Ahead In Heavy Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—Chemicals, steels, motors and other cyclical issues surged ahead along with more glamorous issues in a sharp stock market advance. Trading was heavy.

An estimated $1.2 billion was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in the Associated Press average.

The market wheelwheers which depend on the business cycle rather than defense contracts or other special factors advanced as Wall Street analysts became more convinced that an economic upturn is not far away.

At the same time, electronics, aircraft-missiles and other issues which stand to benefit from increased defense spending made big gains.

Chemicals, recommended in some Wall Street quarters, went to town. Steels and motors were solidly ahead, Ford gaining 2% as earnings prospects, despite the likelihood of a decline, still looked good.

Brokers reported that the public was rushing into the market in greater numbers.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds advanced in fairly active trading.
